Paid-parking concept still far from a reality

■ Even those who helped develop plan admit major concerns

By PAUL WOLF

ALMOST IN the same breath, it has been described as Carmel's oldest problem, its greatest problem, and the headache we can expect to grow worse.

But as the community now contemplates a plan of action on Carmel's parking problem, concerns can be heard from many directions. It appears unlikely that a smooth road separates the paid-parking concept and its reality.

Even City Administrator Jere Kersnar — who urges implementation of a two-year trial for a paid parking plan by Oct. 1, 1994 — admits the "medicine may be worse than the disease."

"I think paid-parking is a neat idea, but it will never get through," said Merv

Sutton, owner of Nielsen Bros. Market and a member the Carmel Parking Committee.

Over a period of years, the committee had laid the groundwork for Kersnar's proposal. Sutton's concerns, like those of committee chairman Alan Williams, are strangely ironic. After all, Kersnar's key ideas for a comprehensive permit program came straight from the committee's report.

Kersnar gave a 90-minute presentation to the Carmel City Council on Thursday, Nov. 18. More meetings on the subject are scheduled. The next one — to include a public hearing — will be Dec. 9.

As envisioned, the parking management program would, for starters:

- Charge for downtown parking.

Doing so would push most employee parking into designated areas on the edges of the commercial district and into some spaces in the residential zones.

THE REMOVAL of management from the downtown branch of the Carmel Post Office has not gone unnoticed.

Petitioners were expecting, by late Wednesday, to have gathered as many as 1,000 signatures from patrons concerned about the changes.

"I believe that the removal of the station manager will result in a deterioration of service — and we certainly don't need that," said Carmel resident Frankie Laney, who wielded a clipboard in front of the 5th Avenue branch earlier this week.

Hard work comes naturally for gifted CHS senior hoop star

By GARTH MERRILL

R.J. POWELL has realized his dream.

But now that Carmel High School's highly touted basketball player has made it come true, the real work begins.

To understand the dream, it's necessary to know the odds stacked against it: Of the tens of thousands of prep basketball players across the country, only the smallest fraction go on to play at the top level in college.

Dream of many, lived by few.

The 6-foot-1 senior guard — who in his junior season led the Padres in points (17.6 per game), rebounds and assists — recently experienced the dream when he signed a letter of intent to attend Pepperdine University in the fall of 1994 on a full athletic scholarship. The school is an NCAA Division I school and competes in the West Coast Conference.

"I guess I'm blessed with athletic ability, but I've worked pretty hard," Powell said. "I've paid my dues."

Well before the Seaside native started high school, he worked on his game. Some of the most important work has been at summer basketball camps, where Powell received instruction from professionals and coaches and had the chance to mix it up with other hot hands. At the Las Vegas Invitational, in mid-July, for example, Powell learned a great deal from his coach, Clarence Morgan.

Powell also has worked alone, attacking his weaknesses. That's what he did to improve his jump shot. "I worked on that all summer — just going to gyms, not playing much, just practicing," Powell said.

"Anybody who thinks he just comes by this naturally hasn't got it," said CHS head coach Rich Frank. "R.J. is a very hard worker."

Powell said he first picked up a basketball when he was two years old. Back then he was just one of the coaches' little kids, playing with the other coaches' little kids at the Seaside High gym. He attended King Junior High School and excelled in youth-league football, baseball and basketball.

Powell chose to attend Carmel High, where his father, Ron, was the assistant basketball coach under Frank, a longtime family friend. Powell still lives in Seaside — with his father and stepmother, Sherry, and his younger two sisters (Jessica and Sonja) and brother (Duane).

"All my friends go to Monterey and Seaside," Powell said.

Of course, having friends as cross-town rivals does See POWELL page 15

Big Sur mourns death of Pat Chamberlain

■ Former CHP, fire chief dies of heart attack at 58

By SUSAN BECK

THE NEWS of Pat Chamberlain's death vibrated through the small Big Sur community like a major earthquake.

The mood among many local residents was somber after hearing that their friend, former resident California Highway Patrol officer and chief of the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade, had died of a heart attack during the night at his home Nov. 16.

One of Chamberlain's sons, Beaux, who works as a Molera State Park trail guide, was quick to say his father was the person people called when they needed help.

"He was willing to help anyone," Beaux said as he tried to hold back his tears. "He loved this community and didn't want to leave. He helped people unconditionally. To the best of my ability, I will follow in his footsteps, and do my best to make him proud of me by helping in the community the way he did."

Chamberlain, 54, was born Oct. 20, 1939 in Pacific Grove. He graduated from Pacific Grove High School and attended Monterey Peninsula College.

In 1960, he began a 27-year law enforcement career as a peace officer with the Carmel Police Department. Four years later, he became a highway patrolman working in Los Angeles until being transferred to Big Sur in 1970. Chamberlain was the longest-serving resident highway patrolman in the Big Sur area when he retired in 1988.

Everyone's friend

Alan Perlmutter, a close friend of Chamberlain for the past 16 years, recalled fondly, "Pat was our local constable. He was one of the best you'd ever want to know, and saved us more than once. He was everyone's friend."

PAT CHAMBERLAIN of Big Sur, who died last week at 54, was considered by most local residents the one person they could count on in times of trouble.

Chamberlain also was an active, outspoken member of Friends of the Big Sur Coast, said Perlmutter, noting he went to Washington in 1986 to lobby against the federalization of Big Sur.

Friends to gather Dec. 12

VIRGIL PAT Chamberlain, former resident California Highway Patrol officer and Big Sur Volunteer Brigade Fire Chief, died of a heart attack Nov. 16.

A resident of Big Sur for the past 18 years, Mr. Chamberlain is survived by his wife, Barbara; a daughter, Ginger of Washington State; four sons, Charles and Michael of Marina; Beaux and Topper of Big Sur; two brothers, Charles of Carmel Valley and Ken of Auburn; his mother, Louise Orchard of Auburn and five grandchildren.

A gathering of friends will be held from noon to 4 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 12, at the Big Sur Volunteer Brigade Firehouse located on the Post Ranch west of Highway 1 in Big Sur.

The family suggests contributions be sent to the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade, P.O. Box 520, Big Sur, 93920.

the way it is."

As director of fund raising for the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade, which was founded in 1974, Perlmutter worked closely with Chamberlain to establish the first fire house in Big Sur.

The fire brigade is responsible for fighting structure fires from the Little Sur River to the San Luis Obispo County line, a distance along the coast of about 56 miles. There are about 50 firefighters, five fire trucks, and two 4,000 gallon water tenders.

During past years, before the firehouse was built, the fire brigade's trucks were parked in the driveways of individual firefighters. Chamberlain remarked at the time, "Not only the fire trucks, but also fire hoses and other gear are scattered up and down the coast."

On May 2, 1992, a dedication celebration was

Education to be core of Fort Ord reuse effort

WITH MONTEREY County officials having laid the groundwork for a Fort Ord Joint Powers Agency, the defense-to-education conversion is one step further along.

County actions followed on the heels of congressional approval for land transfers from Fort Ord to the California State University (CSU) and the University of California (UC).

The federal legislation, initiated by Rep. Sam Farr, D-Carmel, will help pave the way toward developing an internationally recognized educational complex that focuses on the environmental sciences — the centerpiece of the Fort Ord reuses.

Joseph Cavanaugh is staff coordinator for the Fort Ord Reuse Group. At present, FORG includes representatives from the cities of Marina, Monterey, Seaside, Sand City, Del Rey Oaks and Salinas.

Cavanaugh was interviewed at his Marina office.

Pine Cone: Many people still discuss the Fort Ord uses as proposed uses. Aren't we well beyond such a tentative stage? Don't we have hard commitments?

Cavanaugh: Yes, let's start from the top.

The Bureau of Land Management is going to get about 15,000 acres of the undeveloped areas of Fort Ord for habitat management. We know it will be responsible for preserving the species that are there and for making the land available for public access.

Next, the University of California, Santa Cruz, has just been conveyed land by federal legislation — land to be used as a science center and university research park.

And then there is Cal State University, Monterey Bay — which has also had land conveyed through special legislation for a 1,300-acre campus. By the year 2020, there will be 25,000 full-time students.

In addition to that, the Army plans to retain about 1,400 housing units to support the Naval Postgraduate School and the Defense Language Institute.

Pine Cone: Aren't there some other educational institutions that will be located at Fort Ord?

Cavanaugh: Quite a number, in fact — The Monterey Peninsula Unified School District, Monterey Peninsula College, Monterey Institute of International Studies, the Monterey College of Law, the Monterey Institute for Research in Astronomy, and, finally, Golden Gate University.

So our strategic objectives at Fort Ord are to have education replace the military, and that is exactly what is happening.

"The CSU campus will be a magnet campus — not only for California, but for the rest of the country and the world — to study marine science, oceanography..."

— Joe Cavanaugh

Pine Cone: Could you talk a bit about the CSU campus?

Cavanaugh: Well, the student enrollment of 25,000 is based on a campus that will have an environmental-science focus.

The CSC campus will be a magnet campus not only for California but for the rest of the country and the world — to study marine science, oceanography, marine biology, and so forth. It will grow based on funding and the demand of the students.

There will be a lot of collaboration between CSU and UC, and they will both focus on environmental sciences. There will be some overlap with faculties, libraries, facilities, computer networks.

In addition, there will be a collaborative relationship among the Hopkins, Long and Moss Landing Marine stations.

Pine Cone: Thinking of the near term, what are the major hurdles facing us?

Cavanaugh: Right now, there are five cities and a county that I work for directly in the land use planning phase.

By next April, we will have approved a final base reuse plan. At that time the joint powers authority will take over.

My job now is to work with the U.S. Army, the Army Corps of Engineers and the local communities to come up with a plan that makes sense.

It must take into account environmental cleanup, which reserves territory for endangered species, and uses that meet the communities' desires for education facilities and economic development.

Pine Cone: With all of the financial difficulties the CSU is having right now, how can it contemplate another campus?

Cavanaugh: The Cal State University campus would in fact be meeting a growing enrollment, and growing eligibility of California residents who could go to CSU schools. The state is growing, and so must the CSU to accommodate that growth.

Its finances have been a problem. The way to overcome that is to have federal funds — with the help of Sam Farr. The federal government will put the initial money in as seed money, but eventually the state is going to have to pick up the burden. I can't imagine the federal government financing the CSU campus at Fort Ord entirely.

Farr, in his role at the House Armed Services Committee, has been able to make incredible progress very quickly.

Pine Cone: What kind of timetable can we expect for getting the CSU off the ground?

Cavanaugh: The CSU will be the first user at Fort Ord, and we expect that it will start renovating the buildings next July — changing the barracks into dormitories, and so on.

The first 2,000 students are due to start in the summer of 1995. Based on the recent legislation, it looks rock solid — 10-to-1 that there is going to be a campus there.

Pine Cone: Talk a little bit about what will be included as part of this UC science center.

Cavanaugh: Well, it's very innovative, very exciting — daring in a way.

The science center will make use of 50 acres, combining UC and other laboratories — all augmented by non-profits, such as the Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute, and federal agencies that are doing similar types of research.

UC plans to pay for it by using the land around the science center as a university research park, similar to what Stanford University has. The center will spawn these companies, which will locate in that research park around the center. Whatever the companies pay for that land is going to be the thing that finances the development of the whole thing.

Sam Farr's legislation was key to this. In general, if you get a public conveyance for educational purposes, you can't sell, rent or lease the land. So by getting the land conveyed directly to UCSC, Farr set up a situation where UC can use the land for this entrepreneurial activity.

This innovative process is key to something called technology transfer — in which you do the basic research and the research is transferred to the companies that use the technologies to make a product. The product, in turn, generates a profit — which pays for roads, sewer and water.

Pine Cone: With all the uses planned for Fort Ord — educational and otherwise — how long do you think it will be before we start to experience a

Carmel wants full voting rights in Joint Powers Agreement

By PAUL WOLF

AS MANY will consider the long-awaited Fort Ord Joint Powers Agreement a breakthrough, Carmel City Council members are unhappy about the prospect of the village's non-voting membership.

"I find this disturbing," said Councilwoman Barbara Livingston. "We will contribute staff time and not get to vote — that's not very helpful for us."

The JPA includes Carmel and Pacific Grove as ex officio members only — able to introduce motions and participate in debates.

The amount of staff time the JPA would require from the cities is not yet certain, according to Carmel City Administrator Jere Kernsar.

Under the JPA, the cities of Seaside and Marina and Monterey County — the bordering jurisdictions — would each have two votes. Salinas, Monterey, Sand City and Del Rey Oaks would have one vote apiece.

"I think we ought to have full membership," said Carmel Councilwoman Barbara Brooks. "The Fort Ord reuse is a regional issue, and what happens affects Carmel."

Friday meeting

Last Friday in Marina, Brooks and Carmel Mayor Ken White lobbied fellow mayors and supervisors as they were shaping the proposed agreement. The county was the first jurisdiction to approve the agreement at the board of supervisors meeting Tuesday.

According to White, the ex officio status came about as a compromise; Carmel appeared to be faced with being left out of the process completely.

According to White, there were assurances that Carmel and PC would be able to apply for full membership "in a few months." Nevertheless, Seaside, Marina and other Fort Ord neighbors would likely "fight like cats and dogs" to make sure that Carmel doesn't achieve voting status, Livingston predicted.

Kernsar said he will present the city council on Dec. 7 with the "policy question" of "whether the ex officio status is worth it." Kernsar said he is not sure how much staff time would be entailed in the city's participation in the JPA, "but there is fear and trepidation" about the staff taking on new projects.

Waiting for details

Kernsar said he intends to consult with Joe Cavanaugh, coordinator for the Fort Ord Reuse Group, before the December council meet to determine what to expect. "I haven't yet had a chance to speak to him and get these details," he said.

The city administrator said an argument can be made for inclusion in the JPA even with a non-voting status. The city's viewpoint would be represented in debate and staff work, and thus could influence decision-making," he said.

White said Carmel has been a player from the outset and should not be left out.

"We were there at the inception of Fort Ord Task Force; we fought the base closure in San Francisco, and we were there during the planning phases," White said. "We have no idea why we weren't included as (voting members) in the JPA."

Paid-parking concept gets jeers, cheers

The theory is as follows: Redirecting employee parking would insure spaces for customers, benefiting businesses and shoppers alike.

• Require residential parking permits.

These would keep downtown employees, visitors and shoppers from using the residential areas to escape downtown parking fees.

• Use parking revenues to boost supply (lots, garages) and encourage trip reduction (carpooling, free bus passes).

"I applaud these first steps," said Williams after the meeting. "And I appreciate that Jere was able to follow the parking committee's direction, but I have concerns."

Williams and others are concerned the paid program would have a chilling effect on potential shoppers in Carmel.

"We make quite an effort to get the peninsula residents to view Carmel as a viable shopping area, and this is going to make it quite impossible," said Toni Jepson, executive director of the Carmel Business Association.

"This will be just another roadblock," Jepson added. "The overall sentiment (of the business community) is that this will be very tough on business. If you lived in Pacific Grove and you knew you had to pay to shop in Carmel, where would you go?"

Meanwhile, the Carmel Residents Association board of directors has not formally discussed paid parking, according to CRA President Beth Wright. It is scheduled to do so Monday, Wright said.

Other concerns surround not just the cost, but the inconvenience, hassle and complexity of whatever program is developed. Still, there are optimistic voices.

"People don't like change, but sometimes change is a good thing," said City Councilman Phil Coniglio. "Clearly, we have to do something about parking."

Coniglio suggested people may be focusing too much on the short-term costs rather than the long-term benefits of making order from chaos. Businesses may stand to gain, he argued.

"You can pay for a parking permit, or you can pay for a parking ticket — but you know it is that parking ticket that leaves a bitter taste in your mouth," Coniglio said.

Casper Cardinale, owner of the Village Shoe Tree, located on Ocean Avenue near Dolores Street, said the paid-parking plan would "at least save the parking for the customers."

He added, "I'm a real tyrant with my employees about their parking on Ocean. We have to remember — we are the ones who create the parking problem, not the visitor."

Kersnar, speaking in a telephone interview this week, did not try to downplay the concerns, noting he proposed a two-year trial period for good reason.

"This will have to be something to watch," he said. "We have to be prepared to call this program a failure."

Kersnar said he believes the chilling effect of charging would be matched by a "countereffect" of customers pleased to be able to find parking.

In addition, the city administrator said paid-parking is not unusual for a resort area. "People expect paid-parking in a popular area."

Nevertheless, Carmel has been accustomed to free parking over the years. And even those who have worked diligently to develop a paid-parking scheme are waiting to be won over by the arguments in favor of it.

Plan at a glance

HERE IS a breakdown of how people would be affected by the proposed Parking Management Program.

• Residents: Each resident would need to buy, or would be issued, an annual residential parking permit.

The purpose of the permits would be to keep tourists and shoppers out of the free parking areas — that is, the residential streets.

There is nothing definitive about whether Carmel residents would be exempt from downtown parking costs.

• Downtown employees: They would pay a moderate fee (perhaps $1 a day, or $30 a month) to park at Sunset Center, Vista Lobos and other lots. Employee zones might also include spaces at the edge of the commercial district and along a few residential streets.

This group would be welcome to pay $1 an hour to park in the business district, but there are liable to be few takers. Employees also may be eligible for special bus passes.

• Business owners: For now, they have been grouped with employees.

• Tourists: They would pay for curbside parking downtown, and, lacking permits, stay clear of residential streets.

• Motel guests: Although the details have not been worked out, they likely would be furnished with some kind of car window identification, allowing them to park for free near the lodging.

• Churchgoers: It is uncertain how they will be accommodated. City officials are concerned about finding a fair arrangement for this group, as well as users of the Carmel Foundation.

• Peninsula residents: As it stands, "local non-residents" would be treated no differently than tourists. Some have expressed hopes for special discount parking vouchers to give area residents a chance to buy Carmel parking "in bulk."

SANTA CLAUS ARRIVES THIS FRIDAY!

Carmel-by-the-Sea to light up Christmas season Dec. 3

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA WILL ring in the 1993 holiday season in good cheer with a series of community events.

In conjunction with the Carmel Business Association and Carmel Plaza, the City of Carmel will host its annual holiday tree-lighting ceremony from 5:30 to 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 3, at Ocean and Junipero in downtown Carmel.

"It's a community celebration," said Jerry Pullen, acting recreation coordinator for the City of Carmel. "It kicks off the holiday season."

According to Pullen, the lighting of the center meridian on Ocean Avenue will coincide with the Christmas tree lighting.

Carmel Mayor Ken White said he welcomes the opportunity to light the Christmas tree as a representative of the community.

"I'm really looking forward to lots of children being there as well as adults," White said. "I need everybody to be there. I can't do it all by myself."

And Santa Claus is comin' to town...

Children can visit Santa from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday at Carmel Plaza. On weekends from Nov. 26 through Dec. 19, hours are as follows: 1 to 6 p.m. Fridays; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays; and noon to 4 p.m. Sundays.

Santa Claus will appear again from 4 to 5 p.m. Friday, Dec. 3, at Devendorf Park in downtown Carmel. Community Christmas caroling will begin at 5 p.m. in the park.

Then during Christmas week - from Dec. 20 through Christmas Eve - Santa can be found from noon to 4 p.m. at the Carmel Plaza.

As always, the Salvation Army is doing its part to bring holiday cheer to those families facing economic difficulties.

New, unwrapped toys will be accepted for distribution by the Salvation Army from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Dec. 23. Toys can be dropped off at the Toys for Kids Sake Headquarters on the courtyard level of Carmel Plaza.

THE CARMEL Plaza shines brightly for the holidays.

Needy children will be making their individual Christmas wishes known on cards which will be placed on the Children's Wish Tree, also located on the courtyard level of Carmel Plaza. According to organizers, people can select a card from the tree, purchase the child's gift request and return it to the Toys for Kids Sake Headquarters.

Other area holiday events include:

Thursday, Dec. 2

- A Christmas tree lighting at 5 p.m. in the lobby of the Doubletree Inn will officially kick off the Family Resource Center's eighth annual Spirit of Christmas toy drive.

During the toy drive, which will continue through Dec. 15, donated unwrapped toys for children 1 to 13 may be dropped off at any Monterey County Mail Boxes Etc.; Longs Drugs in Salinas, Monterey, Carmel and Pacific Grove; or at any Monterey County Wells Fargo Bank. Information: 375-1747.

Friday, Dec. 3

County budget decisions sans public's input alarms judge

By SUSAN BECK

JUDGE MICHAEL Fields (center left) discussed budget cuts to judicial department in Monterey County with Berkley Brannon, deputy district attorney (center) and Fran Farina.

MUNICIPAL COURT Judge Michael Fields slammed Monterey County officials for budget decisions made without the public's participation and which potentially are keeping criminals on the loose.

Leveling similar charges was Berkley Brannon, a county deputy district attorney, who also spoke to a group of Carmel Valley residents last week at the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association's annual general meeting.

The meeting was held at All Saints Episcopal Day School in Carmel Valley, Nov. 17.

In a list of criticisms, Fields singled out the county's counsel, characterizing the legal staff as unnecessary and prone to contracting important tasks.

Both lawmakers cited several budget decisions affecting the judicial process, concerning the witness-assistance program and the Monterey County Sheriff's Department.

"It's still a secret," Fields lamented. "But the sheriff's department is not processing warrants outside of Monterey County."

For example, Fields explained, if a law-enforcement officer stops someone who has a warrant for their arrest, the officer is required to notify the agency where the warrant was originally issued. Under normal conditions, if the warrant was issued in another county, a patrol officer from that county would be responsible for picking up the person under custody.

"The response from Monterey County will be, 'No, we can't pick him up. Give him a citation,'" Fields pointed out. "Sheriff Norman Hicks has to decide if he can afford to take a deputy from patrol and go to another county. Hicks decided not to. But what good is another citation. That person didn't show up in court the first time. Why would they show up the second time?"

Fields said the budget constraint is a legitimate problem. But his concern is that the board of supervisors made the budget cuts to the sheriff's department "without consulting the public."

Brannon talked about the lack of funding for assisting witnesses to crimes in Monterey County.

"There is no protection in the DA's office for witnesses," Brannon said, pointing out that if witnesses to crimes are afraid to come forward during a trial, the proper thing to do is offer to put them up in a hotel or move them to another local.

"We are just supposed to persuade them to testify by telling them, 'It's the law — you have to testify.'"

Brannon recalled a murder case he was prosecuting in which a 15-year-old killed another youth by shooting him in the back five times at close range. A 14-year-old saw the murder.

It was a serious case, said Brannon, but the witness lived in the neighborhood where the murder happened. He lived in a house with a big picture window and was afraid to come forward.

Coastal tree rules stir controversy

By PAUL WOLF

AN EFFORT has gotten underway this week to clarify rules for tree removals in Carmel Highlands, but the process is not likely to bridge differing philosophies on how to manage the forest.

On Tuesday, a dozen citizens were charged with studying coastal tree regulations, but no one can say exactly what will result from the review.

Hand-selected by 5th District Supervisor Sam Karas, the ad hoc committee is more likely to dwell on interpreting rules rather than making new ones.

"I myself will not be recommending that the rules be changed," said Bud Carney, the county planner who supervises the coastal regulations in the Carmel Area Land Use Plan.

Carney will be the committee's staff representative.

Even one of the staunchest advocates of more flexibility for pruning and removals says he is hoping for new attitudes, not regulations. "The committee needs to encourage people that they should clean up the forest and get rid of dead wood and be able to use common sense," said committee member Leland Lewis.

Committee member Barbara Rainer is concerned that private gain and excessive concern about forest fires may be at issue.

"We have a natural resource that is dwindling and must be protected as well as possible," Rainer said.

The committee is expected to develop an evaluation of the current rules and report back to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors within 90 days.

Karas Tuesday had selected committee members and subsequently found himself the object of criticism from some residents, who said the committee was stacked in favor of people who would, in fact, seek more flexible tree removal rules. Karas responded by making some additional appointments.

The committee is expected to probe into the touchy area of illegal pruning and cutting. Currently, the planning department has a multi-tiered process for tree removal request, based on the significance of the trees in question. The process includes opportunities for appeals and waivers.

However, Lewis decries the "tree police" and "anonymous whistle-blowers" who report violations to the county planning department.

Yet, Lewis could not say which aspect of the process should be changed. It appears unlikely the board of supervisors would be willing to dismantle the regulations, many of which originate at the California Coastal Commission.

"The committee will look at how the rules and regulations read," Carney said. "We will also look at how they are interpreted. But basically I believe the regulations adequately speak to the issues of preserving the forest."

Carmel merchant advocates spirit of holiday giving

By SUSAN BECK

KENNETH DERRICK believes there is no better way to start off the Christmas season than to donate the "gift of life" at the American Red Cross Christmas blood drive in Carmel.

For most of the past 11 years, Derrick has been the first person through the doors of the American Legion offering to donate blood.

"Giving blood at Christmas is the most fulfilling way to get into the holiday spirit," said Derrick, who owns and operates the Elegant Set, a fine linen and crystal shop in Carmel.

Derrick started donating blood after World War II while he attended Duke University in North Carolina.

"I was born at the end of the Great Depression," he explained. "I grew up during the war. I think we had a higher degree of patriotism in those days."

Greater need

Despite his personal enthusiasm — he donates blood four times a year — Derrick is upset that fewer people are participating in blood drives.

"The need is greater and the supply is shorter," Derrick said. "If people don't donate blood, then we will have to rely on people selling it. With that, the price goes up, and the recipient will have to pay more."

Kenneth Derrick often first in line at Christmas blood drive

Mary Margaret DeBartolo, blood service chairperson for Carmel's Red Cross chapter, said in the past, about 60 people donated blood in each blood drive. In the last few years, the number has dropped to about 40 people.

Part of the reason for the decline in blood donor participation, said DeBartolo, may be, in part, a fear of AIDS. In addition, she added, it may also be the inclination to donate blood at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Derrick also attributes the lack of blood donors to AIDS. But, he said, anyone who is apprehensive about donating blood should rest assured there is nothing to be afraid of.

Before anyone donates blood, they are given a mini-physical including an HIV blood test, said Derrick. And, he noted, if anyone is hesitating to donate blood because they are queasy about needles, the area where the needle will go can be numbed.

Gracious women

"The Carmel Red Cross blood drive is a worthwhile experience," Derrick remarked. He observed the place is decorated beautifully, the fireplace is going, there is Christmas music, cookies, and lunch is served to all blood donors.

"The volunteers are the most gracious women in Carmel," he added. "They all give freely of their time, only wishing they were busier."

For Derrick, the idea of donating blood represents a greater philosophical meaning. He believes assisting private institutions through volunteerism is the way to maintain independence. Otherwise, he observed, government agencies will be required to mandate your private life.

FOR THE past 11 years, Kenneth Derrick, owner of the Elegant Set, starts off the holiday season by donating blood at the Carmel Red Cross chapter.

"If a person loves their community and life," he said "they have to support it. 'In giving, you receive' is a truism."

CHS students help Red Cross

SEVERAL CARMEL High School students recently trained with members of the Carmel American Red Cross chapter to teach a first aid course, First Aid for Children Today, to local kindergarten through third grade children.

The first aid course will be taught to children at Carmelo and Tularcitos elementary schools as part of the Carmel Schools' Latchkey Program.

Blood Drive set for Dec. 2

THE CARMEL Red Cross Chapter and the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula will hold a joint Holiday Blood Drive from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 2, at the American Legion Hall located at Dolores and Eighth streets in Carmel.

Fields favors eliminating county counsel

"We couldn't even meet him halfway," Brannon recalled. "I thought, 'Do I want to drag this kid in and risk his life?' There wasn't any money to protect him. We had to let the murderer go."

Community involvement

Fields said the examples he and Brannon recounted expressed the need for the community to get more involved with county budget issues.

When asked what he considered the best way to participate in changing the way county funds are distributed, Fields replied, "Eliminate county counsel, which is advising the board of supervisors. County counsel does not bother with a case, it's farming out jobs at a high expense. What they do is send memos."

He recommended letting the district attorney, Dean Flippo, do the job.

"If you don't like Dean Flippo," Fields observed, "vote him out. You can't vote county counsel out because they're appointed by the board of supervisors. What they are is 'yes men.'"

Prine re-elected to Heritage board

KAY PRINE has been elected to a second term as president of the Carmel Heritage Board of Directors, a preservation organization for the collection and interpretation of Carmel's historic and cultural heritage.

Other elected officers include: Jim Gregg, first vice president; Philo Holland, second vice president; T. Michael Ball, treasurer and Elisabeth Ungaretti, recording secretary.

Carmel "Cappy" Martin and Marilyn Murphy have been elected to three-year terms as members of the board.

Q & A with Cavanaugh

rebound economically?

Cavanaugh: I think as soon as next summer.

We are going to see construction work occur. Private companies will begin locating on Fort Ord. They will be employing planners and architects, and eventually plumbers and carpenters.

In general, we are seeing a lot of confidence in our economy from the private sector — for example, the new Kmart in Marina. I think that is a validation that the long-term economy is not going to be crippled.

In Sand City, they are considering three new retail outlets.

Pine Cone: Did people overestimate the economic downturn?

Cavanaugh: I think it is just that people were conservative — in the sense that they documented the loss of payroll. About 31,000 people have left the area, 9 percent of the total county population. But people from other areas are moving into Marina and Seaside. The population center of the peninsula is going to move a bit north.

We'll see a short-term turnaround. However, the community has had the desire to create quality jobs at Fort Ord over the next 50 years, and this is a 50-year plan. Clearly, Fort Ord presents one of the major opportunities for growth in our region in the long term.

held for the new firehouse located on the Post Ranch, west of Highway 1. Chamberlain told a crowd of more than 250 people that "the firehouse was built with the help of many people. And, it takes my breath away every time I drive by."

Karin Strasser Kauffman, former supervisor for the 5th District, which includes Big Sur, said Chamberlain was associated with every major cause in Big Sur.

"Pat was always right in the middle of everything," she remembers. "Rightly, people looked to him to get things done, whether rescuing someone or starting a benefit. He worked publicly and privately for the community's good. Pat was the key figure on so many fronts. He was very strong, compassionate and beloved."

Chamberlain succeeded Walter Trotter as chief of the fire brigade in 1984. He retired last year, with Frank Pinney, general contractor and Carmel Unified School District board member, taking over.

Pinney, who met his predecessor 20 years ago, talked about Chamberlain's natural leadership.

"He had a great deal of charisma," Pinney said. "He was always ready to do the thing that was needed to make a situation work. He filled the unique need of bridging the gap between the older generation and the new. He found a home in Big Sur."

Despite the fact his friend was "not an uncontroversial person," Pinney pointed out. "There was never any question about his commitment to the community. He was bigger than life and his legend will grow."

Thieves take cement statue, wooden bench

By SCOTT BREARTON

THIEVES ARE at work again in Carmel, evidenced by a concrete statue and wooden bench stolen last week from two separate businesses.

Carmel Police Detective Sgt. Pete Poitras said someone walked away with a three to four-foot-long wooden bench from the storefront of Out of the Blue gift shop (located at Mission and Sixth). It was stolen sometime between 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 16 and 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 17.

According to store manager Ginger Gray, the custom-made pine bench was originally inside the store, but had been moved to a private alley outside for the holiday season. While Gray said the $800 bench was covered, she noted it wasn't bolted down.

"I think someone must have had their eye on it for awhile," Gray said.

Reward offered

In a separate incident, Poitras said a white, "buddha-type" solid concrete statue - the top half of a fountain - was taken from the Comfort Inn of Carmel-by-the-Sea (located at Carpenter and First) sometime between 5 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 18 and 10:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 19.

"I think somebody just stole it as a prank," said Comfort Inn manager Charlie Cook. "It's quite heavy. It must weigh in excess of 250 pounds."

Cook said the statue, valued at $500, was approximately three and one-half feet tall and had a diameter of about two to three feet. He said he is offering a $50 reward for its return.

Poitras said there are no suspects in either of these grand theft cases. Anyone with information about these crimes is asked to call the Carmel Police Department at 624-6403.

New teachers bring enthusiasm, energy to Tularcitos

By SCOTT BREARTON

TULARCITOS ELEMENTARY School has three new teachers on board, including a fourth kindergarten teacher who has helped to absorb an increase in enrollment there.

"In addition to them being wonderful teachers, they've all had a great variety of other work experiences," said Principal Karen Camilli. "That makes them a great addition to our staff."

Kristen Druggan, a 25-year-old graduate of San Diego State University, taught first-grade at Village Elementary School in Coronado Unified School District for one year before moving to the Monterey Peninsula with her husband.

"I love the kids here, and the community is really cohesive," she said. "It's been a really positive experience."

Now Druggan teaches first-grade at Tularcitos, integrating different subject areas around her social studies curriculum. Kids learn language arts, mathematics and music by studying foreign countries and their respective cultures.

Druggan also uses drama in an interesting way, allowing children to actively learn reading, writing and spelling by taking roles in class performances.

"It helps children visualize what they're reading and writing," she said.

While Druggan spends most of her time working on lesson plans for her class, she enjoys arts and crafts in her leisure time.

CONNIE SANCHEZ, Judith Goldman and Kristen Druggan have joined the staff at Tularcitos Elementary School in Carmel Valley.

Judith Goldman, 44, has joined the kindergarten staff at Tularcitos Elementary School. Goldman was hired as the school's fourth kindergarten teacher.

Goldman, who graduated from Southern Connecticut State University in 1971, has a bachelor's degree in early childhood education.

Her first position was a two-year commitment teaching kindergarten at an inner-city elementary school in New Haven, Conn.

Ten years ago, she moved to the Monterey Peninsula, where she has worked as a travel agent, a profession she has known for 15 years.

Five years ago, she decided to go back into teaching, and earned a California teaching credential from Chapman College. For the last two years, she worked for MPUSD - at Marshall School in Fort Ord. With the announcement of Fort Ord's closure, Goldman was laid off, but rehired by MPUSD at the beginning of this year as a day-to-day substitute teacher.

Goldman, who teaches during a "late bird" kindergarten session at Tularcitos, said she was thrilled to be offered a full-time position with Carmel Unified. This will be her fifth year teaching kindergarten.

Goldman enters the Tularcitos kindergarten program at a time when it is faced with increasing enrollment. At last count, 99 kindergartners were enrolled at the Carmel Valley elementary school.

In an attempt to make the best use of classroom space and ease crowding, the kindergarten schedule at Tularcitos was converted this year to two morning and two afternoon classes. Morning classes are held from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., and the afternoon session is held from 11:45 a.m. to 2:45 p.m.

"The parents were a little reluctant in the beginning," Goldman said, "but I think they really like it now that the children have settled in."

Although Goldman is an afternoon teacher, she helps her partner, Judy Leavelle, for an hour in the morning. Leavelle, in turn, helps Goldman for an hour in the afternoon.

"When we help each other we cut the class in half, so we're working with smaller groups," she said.

And Goldman said working with other teachers has been helpful: "My team members have been great, they really have. They've been doing a lot of hand-holding until I get a hold on exactly where they're going. We're very complementary on the type of things we do."

Goldman noted that because kindergartners have a short attention span, they need to be actively involved in learning: "If you're just talking at them, you're going to lose them."

"In the morning, we do directed lessons where I take control," Goldman said. "Later in the day, we do child-directed lessons where they take control - and they can explore and do what they want."

Goldman is married and lives in Pacific Grove with her husband and eight-year-old son, a third-grader at Forest Grove Elementary School.

Connie Sanchez

Connie Sanchez, 45, has been teaching grades four through eight for 16 years.

Sanchez, who graduated from a private college with a degree in English, reading and composition, was first employed with Chino Unified School District in Southern California. She also worked for Amador County Unified School District in the Sierras for 12 years before landing a job with Monterey Peninsula Unified School District.

Her experience has been in grades four through eight, primarily at the fifth and sixth-grade level. Her last teaching position was at Fitch Middle School in MPUSD, where she taught sixth-grade language arts for one and one-half years.

Now at Tularcitos, she teaches all subjects at the fifth-grade level. Sanchez said she prefers the self-contained classrooms, which gives teachers the opportunity to integrate all subject areas in the curriculum.

Sanchez also utilizes a thematic approach to learning, which she says helps keep up the level of enthusiasm. Students spend one month on each theme.

River School's educational technology program 'growing up'

Model program will give students the tools they need to be competitive in a modern workplace

By SCOTT BREARTON

PARENTS AND teachers are combining their resources to make River Elementary School's Educational Technology program a model for other school districts.

"It's really developed a lot faster than we thought," said River School Principal Sharron Douglas. "Everyone is working so hard."

It all began as an idea - to give students the tools they need to be successful in an age where a working knowledge of computers is indispensable.

River School children enrolled in the fifth-grade pilot program seemed to agree it will give them an edge.

"I think using computers will help me in life," said Austen Suchan. "If you don't know much about computers, you might not get the job you want. It's good to start using computers when you're young."

Brian Orosco agreed: "It will help me to use computers real well - for college and high school and in the future."

Currently, five fifth-graders and one fourth-grader are enrolled in the pilot program, giving up an hour of sleep in the morning to learn robotics, multimedia communication, mathematics and general computer applications - such as tutorial programs for typing. The class runs from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m.

"It's fun enough to get up in the morning, but it's not like recess," said Honey Hamilton. "You're learning and having fun. I think it will give me a head start."

Mentor students include Suchan, Orosco, Hamilton, Brittani Parks, Carl Lostrom (a fourth-grader) and Hans Lee. In turn, they will teach other fifth-graders how to use computers.

River School parents assist in the lab every week and have been "very involved" in the pilot program, according to Douglas. Among them are Mike and Linda Lee, Bob and Pam Hamilton, Ernie and Valerie Lostrom, Darlene and Ray Parks, Nate Danielson, Mary Kay Orosco and Jim Suchan.

"It's really exciting," said Linda Lee.

HANS LEE (right), a fifth-grader at River Elementary School, and fourth-grader Carl Lostrom are learning valuable computer skills which they will pass on to their fellow students.

"We hope to have it fully functioning by the end of the year."

Not just word processing

According to Douglas, the objective of the program isn't to just teach word processing. The goal is to teach communication through the use of computer technology.

Students are sending and receiving E-mail (electronic mail) through the use of computers, telephone lines and modems within the classroom "mini lab." They have their own mailbox and password so they can check for messages, homework reminders and schedules.

A CD-ROM (compact disk acting as a read-only memory device) is used to access information from its built-in encyclopedia, atlas and dictionary. The system will be used to enhance research projects and as a supplement to academic curricula.

According to Douglas, all 95 fifth-grade students will produce computer-designed projects using the labs. She said curriculum content will be determined by the classroom teacher and a

Padres, Pepperdine know they have a jewel in Powell

have its appeal.

"I really like it when it comes time to compete with them. I get to brag and stuff," Powell smiled.

And he gives credit to his father, mother (Cynthia Wyr) and stepmother for supporting him every step of the way.

A big decision for Powell when he arrived at CHS was playing basketball and running track, instead of playing football and baseball.

As a result, Powell also has competed in the Central Coast Section 100-meter finals and in the long jump at the state meet. And he has had more time to work on that dream.

That work started to pay off for Powell last year. He displayed his skills over the summer at a camp at St. Mary's and turned the heads of several college scouts.

"Just about every school in the conference was interested in him," said Pepperdine assistant coach David Campbell. "He has the makings of a quality Division One-point guard."

Pepperdine wasn't the only school seeking his services, however. UC-Santa Barbara, University of San Francisco, St. Mary's, Santa Clara and Idaho State are among the colleges that courted Powell.

"I got so many letters. And then everybody started calling," Powell recalled. "It was exciting at first, but it got to a point where I started to get burned."

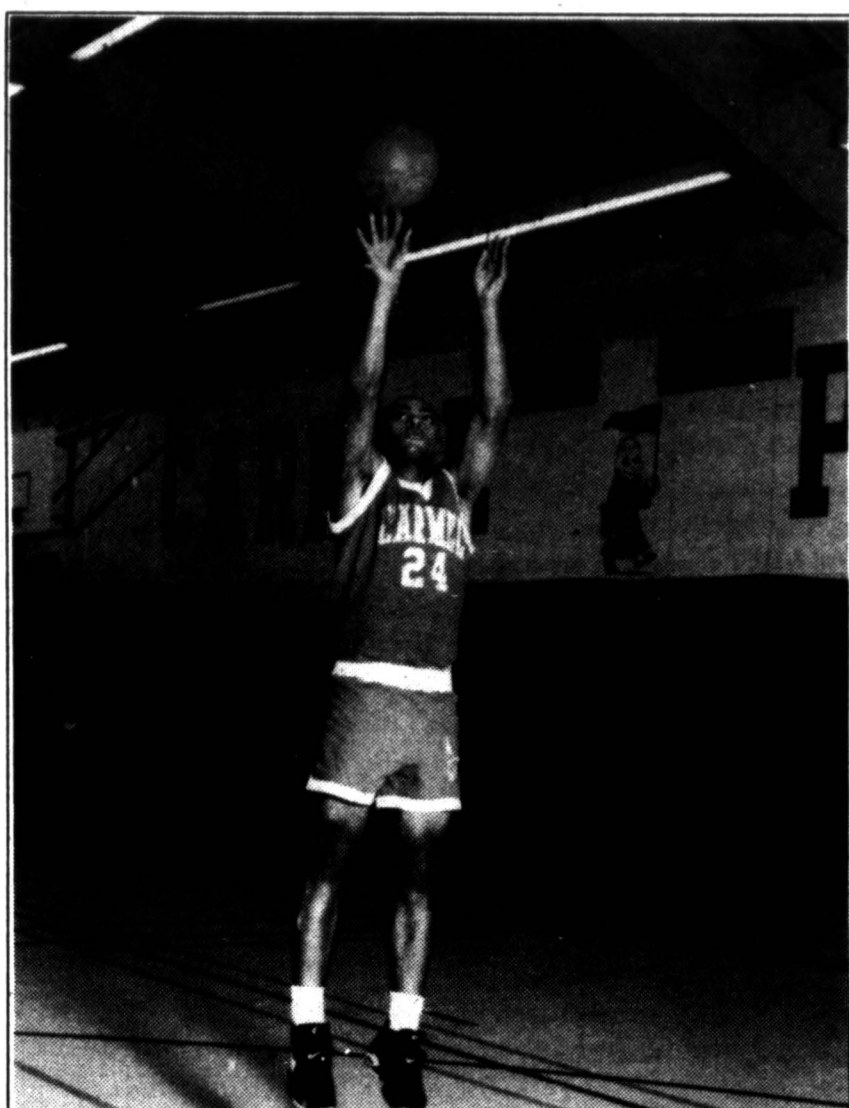

Fortunately for Powell, his coach had seen it all coming and he had advice. Coach Frank is a longtime friend of the Powell family and R.J. listened.

Frank advised Powell to relax, take a good look, consider the school, its setting, its population and its basketball program.

"I expected it," Frank noted. "I told him everybody was going to sound good. I told him he should put academics before basketball, but that he did need to think about basketball. I told him to think about the environment he was entering."

Powell didn't have to think much past Pepperdine.

In his mind his letter of intent was signed on his first trip to Malibu. He liked the campus, reputed as among the most scenic in the country. He liked the university's facilities for his chosen major, telecommunications. And finally, importantly, he liked Pepperdine basketball.

"I like the winning program," Powell said. "I gelled with the players right away."

Powell should have a chance to solidify his bond with the Pepperdine players as soon as he gets there. After this season, the school will lose several seniors, leaving spots open on the starting lineup.

"We're not bringing him here to sit on the bench," Campbell said. "He is a great athlete. He has great

Talk about a small world

BACK IN the 1973-74 season, current CHS basketball mentor Rich Frank was the coach at Seaside High. The Spartans that year won the school's first state championship. On his squad, playing backup to the league Most Valuable Player, was a skinny kid named Ron Powell.

Across town, at Monterey High, was a player by the name of David Campbell, who in a couple of years would be coaching locally.

"Ron was a pretty good player himself," Frank remembers.

He was good enough to go to play at Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo. When Powell's playing days were over, Frank offered him a job as assistant coach at Seaside. When Frank took the Carmel coaching job he brought Powell with him.

And Powell brought along a young man named R.J. — his son and one of the most heralded high school players in the state.

After graduating in June 1994 from Carmel High School, R.J.'s next stop will be Pepperdine University, where he will be a member of the Waves' outstanding basketball program. And the name of the Pepperdine assistant coach that scouted R.J. and lured him to Mailbu?

How about David Campbell, Monterey High, Class of '76.

ability to defend. I love his athletic ability."

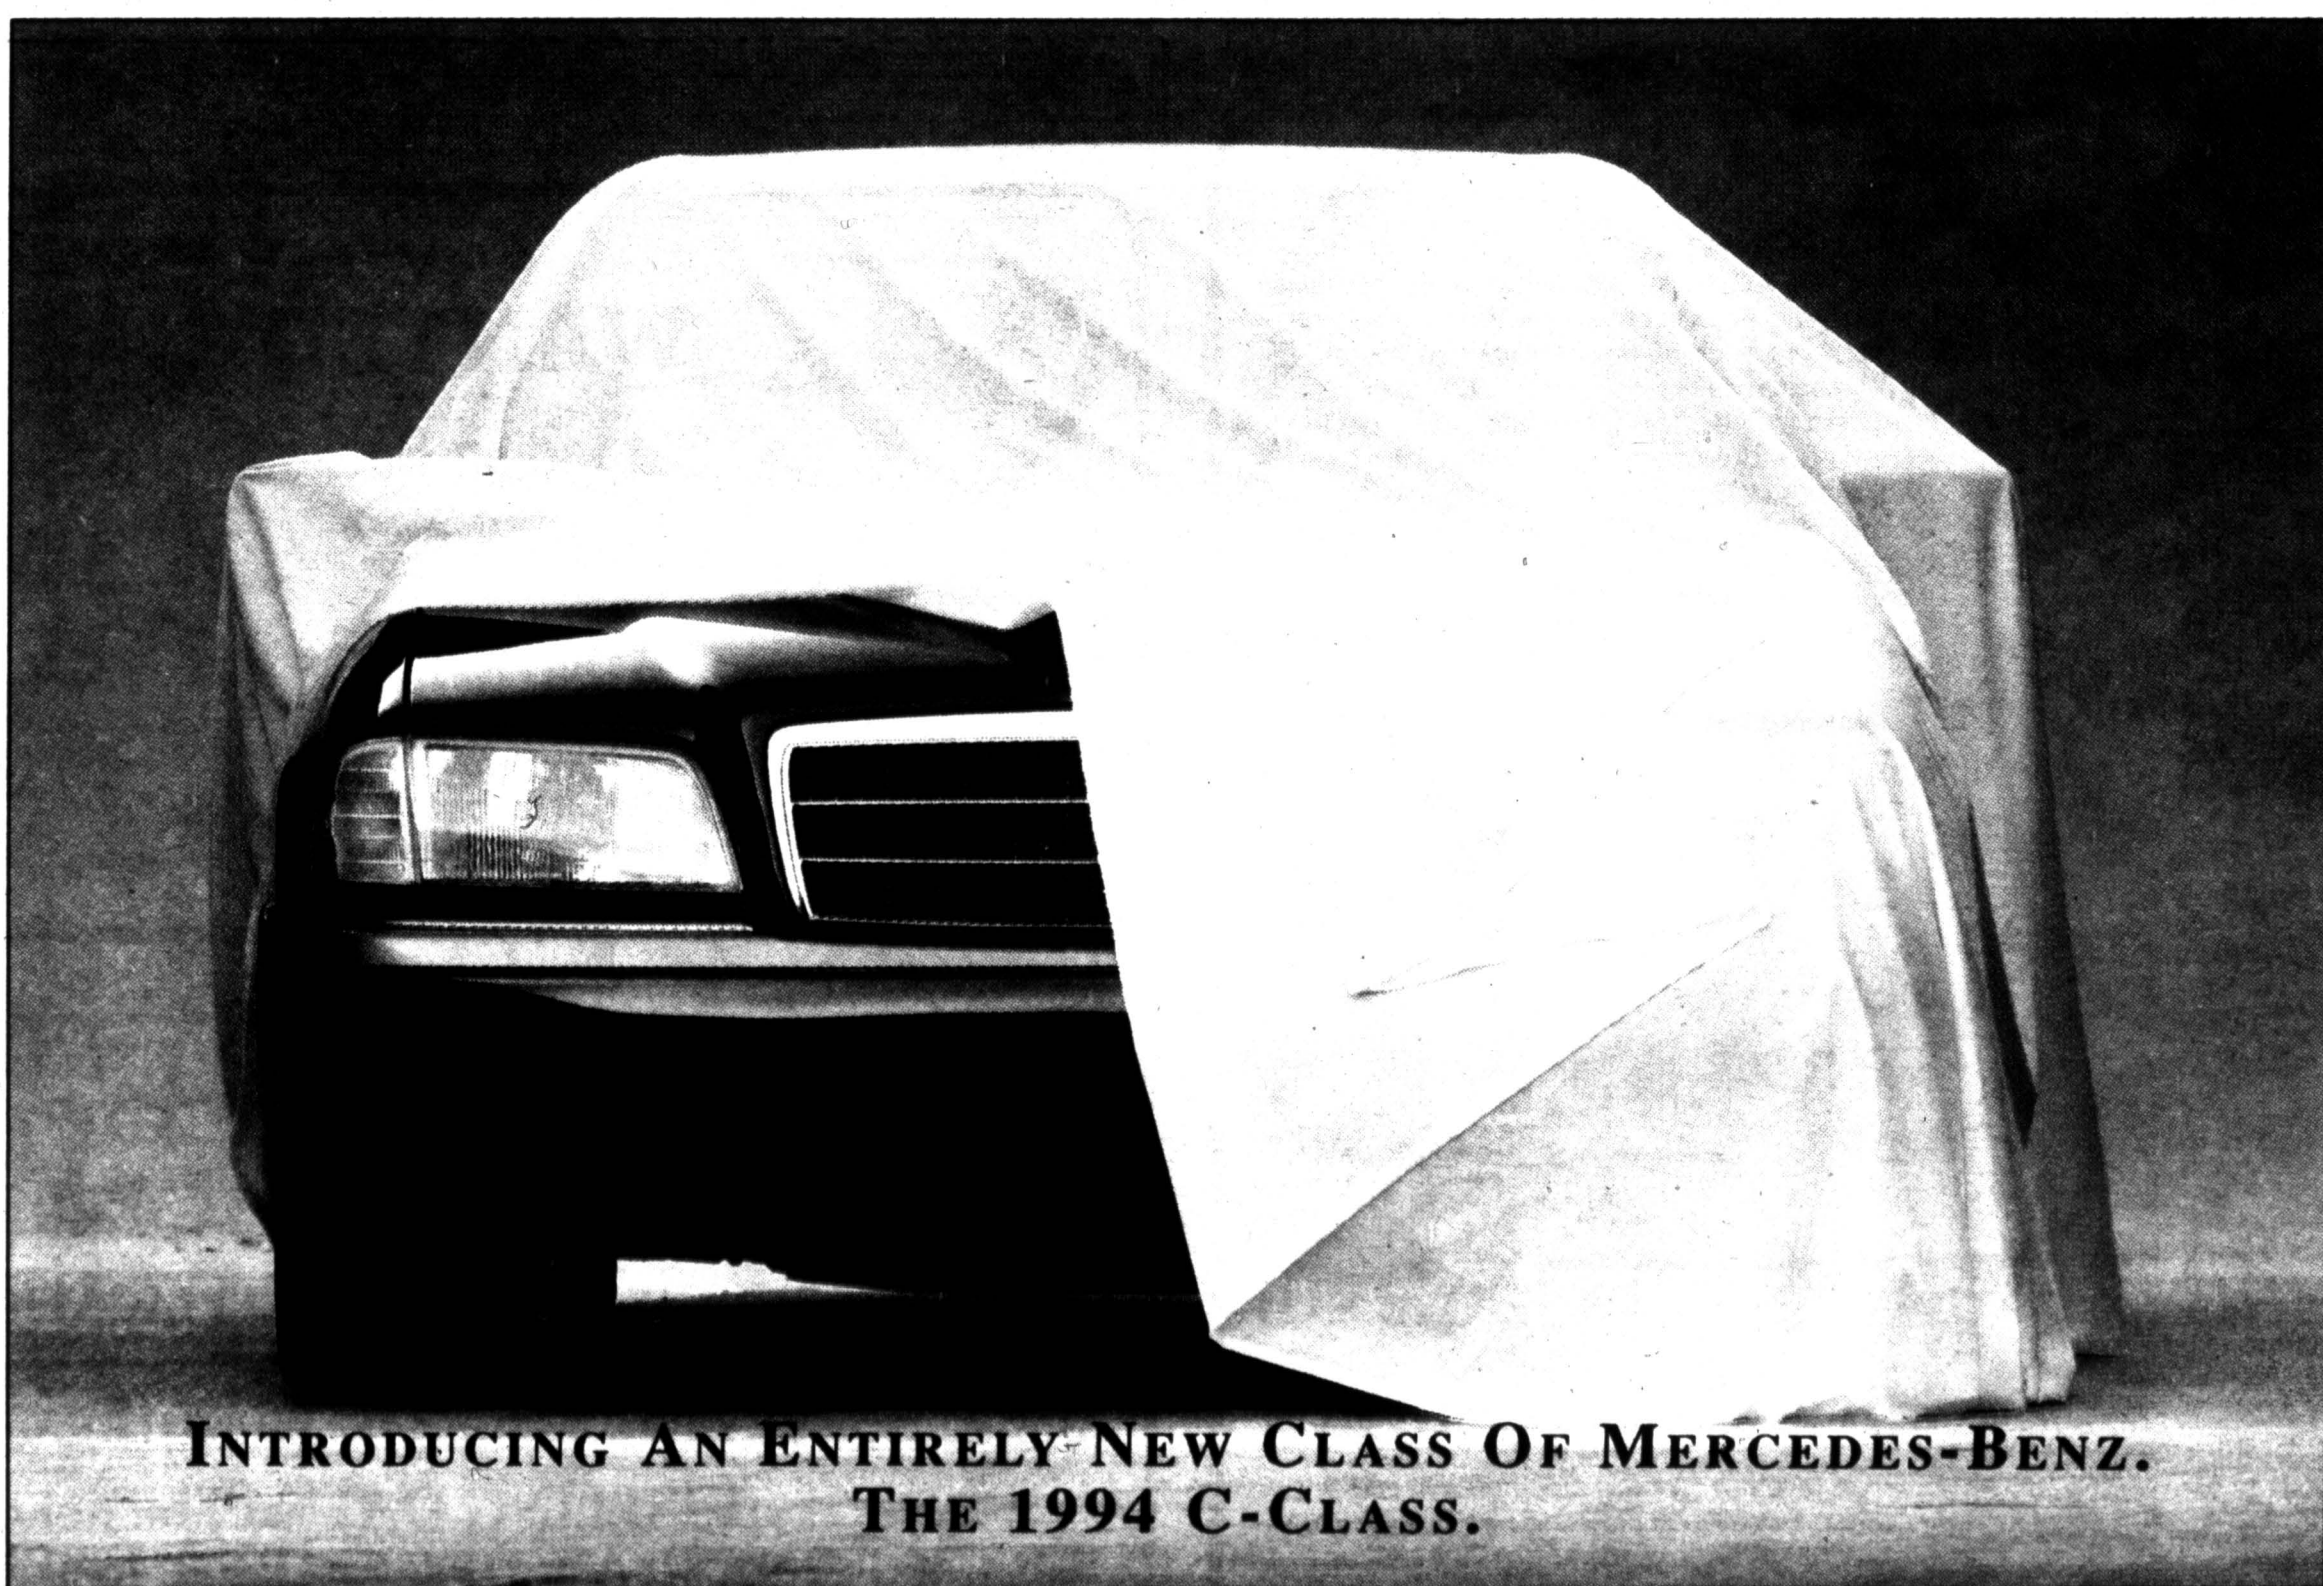

But, to earn a starting spot, Powell still needs to maintain his work ethic. For example, Campbell said Powell needs to work on his shooting a little.

Not surprisingly, Powell has been working on it.

"He needs to become a better decision-maker," Campbell said. "But I think that is something that will come with time and experience."

As usual, Powell is working on it.

First annual 'Big Sur Christmas Bird Count' slated

THE BIG Sur Ornithology Lab (BSOL) is planning its first-ever Christmas Bird Count on Saturday, December 18.

The BSOL is in the final stages of organizing the event, and we are actively recruiting volunteers who are interested in participating in this traditional ecological and social occasion. Volunteers may help with bird censusing, tallying birds at their bird feeders, or help with the evening potluck and bird countdown at the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary Research and Education Center at Andrew Molera State Park.

The Count area covers a 15-mile circle centered just to the east of Andrew Molera State Park which encompasses the Pt. Sur Lighthouse, Palo Colorado Road, Botcher's Gap, Los Padres Dam, Pine Valley, Little and Big Sur River Watershed, Big Sur, parts of the Coast Ridge Road, and a narrow strip of the Pacific Ocean.

Historically, Christmas bird counts began on Christmas Day, 1900, by the well-known ornithologist Frank Chapman, as a protest over indiscriminate hunting of game and songbirds. In nearly a hundred years of Christmas counts involving tens of thousands of counters and millions of birds, it has achieved at least one of its initial goals—mitigating the senseless slaughter of many species of birds. Since the turn of the century, most species of birds and mammals have now been protected.

Foresight, not hindsight

However, today we still are faced with environmental dangers, the problem is, they are not easy to quantify. Birds are often excellent indicators of early problems in an ecosystem, likened to the proverbial "canary in a coal mine." Globally, many of the world's birds appear to be declining in numbers... some are critically endangered, others are threatened, and many are still in a state of ecological balance! The point is, we need foresight, not hindsight, to save birds before they are beyond the point of recovery.

There are a variety of environmental threats to birds, but the most ominous is habitat loss and degradation. We are constantly expanding our cities and towns at the expense of habitats, such as a coniferous or deciduous forest, marsh, shoreline, mudflat, grassland, riparian streambed or orchard.

We often do not associate the shrinking or fragmentation of our habitats as a problem, but research clearly shows serious avian population declines are directly correlated to habitat fragmentation. Many ecotonal (edge) predators (such as brown-headed cowbirds, foxes, raccoons and skunks) are now able to penetrate into the center of these habitats, exploiting resources previously unobtainable. Brown-headed cowbirds are avian parasites. They lay their eggs in unsuspecting nests of other avian species; the cowbird's nestling matures faster and subsequently outcompetes the nesting bird's offspring, eliminating the nesting bird from the gene pool.

'Birds in Balance'

The National Audubon Society has introduced another new initiative called "Birds in Balance", an international program designed to protect birds and their habitat. Along with the Christmas bird count, these campaigns are aiming to quantify declines in bird populations. To document declines in bird populations, long-term data sets are essential, and the best winter bird distributional data set is the Christmas bird count. By participating in the annual Christmas bird count, you will be contributing to a valuable long-term data set which is fun and important to our knowledge of bird ecology.

In North America there are approximately 1,646 counts (including 37 from the tropics and 10 in the Pacific Islands). Recently, annual bird counts have involved approximately 43,000 observers, tallying nearly 650 species, totaling millions of birds.

Locally, our Christmas bird count censuses vary tremendously depending upon the habitats which are measured. In 1991, the Monterey count had 172 species; Moss Landing, 202 species; and Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, one species - a raven! Essentially, the goal is to comprehensively tally all bird species and numbers within the count circle. The Big Sur Christmas Count circle includes a variety of habitats, which will certainly produce a wide variety of birds.

If you wish to take part in the first annual Big Sur Christmas bird count, obtain a copy of the new Andrew Molera bird checklist, participate in the bird-banding program, or become a member of the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary to support our research and education programs, please contact Jeff Davis at 624-1202, or Craig Hohenberger at 626-8348.

Teachers bring enthusiasm to Tularcitos Elementary

"The particular unit they're working on now involves dinosaurs, where everything has to do with that theme," Sanchez said. "It works really well for the students," she added, characterizing her curriculum as "thinking and meaningful."

Sanchez agreed the level of parental and staff support at Tularcitos is outstanding and she is enthusiastic about her job.

"I love to get up in the morning and come out here and teach. I look forward to it. It's great. The kids are receptive. Everybody's positive and professional."

"And I love the age group," she added. "I love fifth and sixth grade. Kids are really fun at that age. They're thinkers."

Sanchez is married and has lived in Pacific Grove for the last two years. She has two grown daughters.

Monterey Rape Crisis Center to show film Wednesday

THE MONTEREY Rape Crisis Center will present a showing of Surviving Rape: A Journey Through Grief from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday in the Social Science Building Room 102 at Monterey Peninsula College.

Although each rape survivor's road to recovery is different, most share common feelings of shame, self-hatred and guilt before finally reaching acceptance and self-love, according to Leda Tully, spokesperson for the Rape Crisis Center.

Using the often-riveting testimonials of rape survivors, Tully explained, the film takes viewers through the healing process.

Due to the sensitive nature of the film, Tully said the Dec. 1 presentation will include a discussion led by Pam Burkes, intern with the Rape Crisis Center.

Admission is free. Additional information may be obtained by calling 373-3955.

Masks dropped at MIIS Ball

A FEW mysterious persons donned masks and later dropped them for the Friends of Monterey Institute of International Studies fund-raising Saturday gala: A Carnival in Venice.

A few.

Sue Dewar insisted on leaving hers on and dancing the night away. She was having a ball visiting with people incognito.

"You'll be seeing me around town in my (feathered) mask with a Pine Cone under my arm," she mused.

Sorry, Sue, but you've been found out.

Others of us, including Alan Richmond and his wife, Lisa, and Lynn Traynor, grabbed gilded masks from the centerpieces and asked, "Is this me after a face lift?"

Uncouth, but it was at the end of the evening after facades had slipped away, and consul generals and wives from Egypt, Finland, Greece, Italy, Luxembourg, Russia, Turkey and Spain had danced the night away to the sensational band The Serenaders. By the way, these distinguished gentlemen, some of them physicians, played a smorgasbord of WWII hits and were unstoppable for hours.

This event was polished in every way, from the silver to women's ball gowns to auction items which, contrary to the norm, went for more than the asking prices. Sometimes way more. For instance, one year's worth of flowers delivered to the bidder's door sold for $750, rather than its $550 suggested price.

Other items were beyond value, such as the MIIS Summer 1994 Intensive Language Program; and a Venetian dinner for six at the private residence of the Italian consulate.

David Armanasco, auctioneer for the evening, called the Monterey Peninsula "the language magnet and capitol of the world" and sailed through the live auction while we were served such four course delights as smoked salmon and jumbo prawns.

During social hour, some guests commented that the dignitaries there were quite approachable (however, the secret service men were not). In fact, the handsome, raven-haired Pierre Gramegna, consul general of Luxembourg, got quite a laugh when he realized he'd pasted his wife, Sylvie's, name tag on himself. Whoops!

Shane Fuller, chairwoman of the committee, was rushing about in her black gown with an elegant red sash, attending to last details as her husband, Stewart, searched for her.

And Dee Robertson, clad in white sequins and green crepe pants, welcomed guests and told me their first such ball was held 21 years ago at the Monterey County Fairgrounds. "It was a piñata party and it raised enough money for us to buy a $90,000 house on Van Buren," she said.

Pretty impressive, and a far cry from this refined party.

Audrey Schrader, president of Friends, was regal in a floor length, green beaded gown. She ensured that every possible detail would be taken care of for this dignified affair.

It seemed a stroke of diplomacy that Friends were able to assemble officianados elegantly, efficiently, and without any windy political speeches. Judging from the number of consul generals on the dance floor and the smiles on their faces - the event was an astral success...

However, a little too much tiramisu, coffee and late night dancing and I'd wager a few of us were "Sleepless in Monterey" after the sensational evening...

It's the little things...

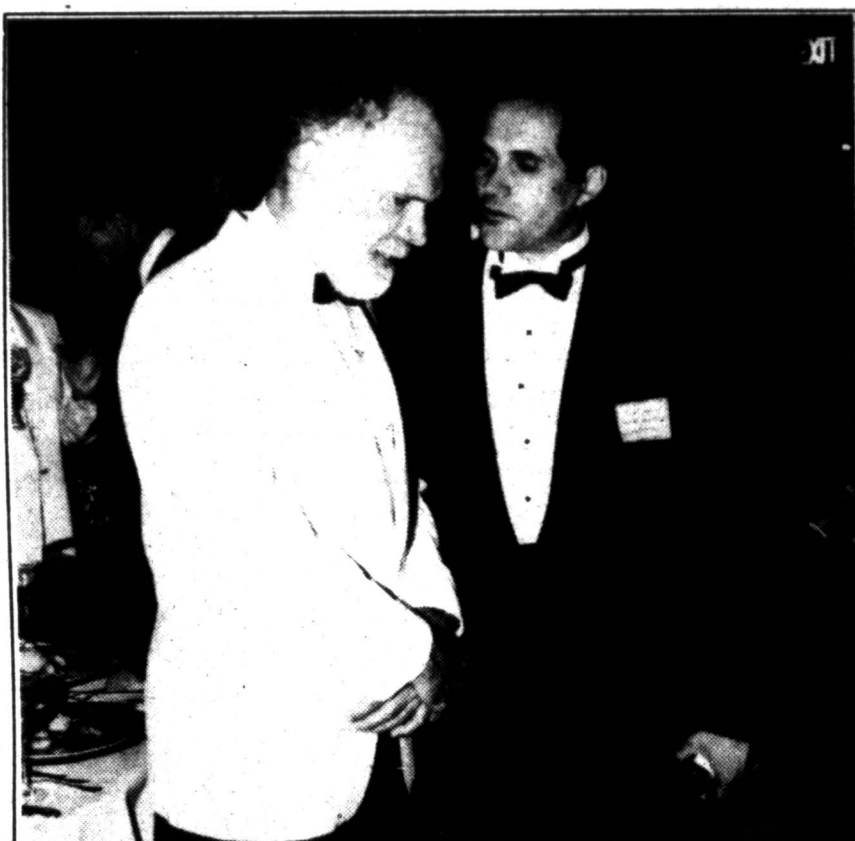

There's nothing like a good neighbor. When the Big Quake hit, I happened to be lucky enough to be standing in my yard with my dear neighbor, Helene. We held each other and quaked as every slat in my fence jiggled down the row like dominoes. We talked on the phone until midnight during the aftershocks.

She always takes a few minutes from raking pine needles to talk to me over the fence.

Carmel is still a place where neighbors talk over

MYSTERIOUS GUESTS Jane Meade, Russ and Terry Gurevitch, and Don Zink posed during An Evening in Venice at The Inn at Spanish Bay. Friends of MIIS dropped their masks, however, later in the evening.

ITALIAN CONSUL Giulio Prigioni, and wife Esther, had an animated conversation with Lilian Najarian.

AND "HUMMINGBIRD" (Virginia Stanton) looked like a native with her drum.

their fences and many of the store owners know you by name.

It was that kind of feeling Saturday during the Homecrafters Marketplace at Sunset Center. You could hear, "Hey, neighbor!" above the din as men, women, children and a few well-behaved dogs examined high quality crafts for sale. I ran into my friend Dena and we embraced. Another friend told me her friend had sold out of items in just two hours.

"There's no kitsch here," I overheard one woman say.

She was right. I shy away from craft fairs where items look like they came off a conveyor belt. But Carmel's is top notch, thanks to Joan Vandervort and a myriad of volunteers.

My first stop was to the Monterey Peninsula Quilters Guild. I was immediately drawn to a gorgeous white and aqua quilt and tempted to buy a dozen more. What could be more down home than quilting? Members were smiling and stitching and told me there's been a resurgence of interest in such things.

Hot dogs smoked on the grill as I wended my way through booths with beeswax tree ornaments; stuffed and beruffled rabbits and dolls; fancy wooden bird houses; and one booth featured zany dinosaur-like creatures in satin.

I went wild when I found some little bear pins and earrings for one dollar each. I'll buy almost anything for a dollar. Reminds me of the days when one dollar would buy you: a couple tickets to the Saturday matinee, a few loafs of Wonder bread, a quadruple decker ice cream cone, several gallons of gas, etc...

Lavender soap...

But what made my day was finding stacks of homemade jams and jellies, including rhubarb. It felt like a hug from grandma and a warm shawl over my lap when I dipped into the apricot jam I'd purchased.

It's the little things leading up to Christmas that often have the most meaning... looking over handmade wares at craft shows, tea and scones at high noon after shopping til you drop, dropping a load of gently used items off at the Salvation Army, letters from voices of Christmas past...

Not the bang and fizzle of the Big Day, but the little things...

Speaking of preliminary joys...

Not only is it a charitable thing to do to ring a bell for the Salvation Army's Kettle Program; it has become quite fashionable. I usually wear outrageous colors to attract attention - and dollars.

The ABCs of How to Make Your Golf Outings More Enjoyable

By Frank Sarubbi, Gen. Mgr., Orlimar • Travaux

I - Ignore advice. Do not give other people advice. They do not want to hear it, and it is not likely going to do them any good anyway.

J - Jive talking. Forget it. It is way out of place on the links. Leave that trash talking for the wannabe basketball players.

K - Kick yourself. Do not kick the club, the bag, the cart, etc. You will find yourself doing much less kicking after a few direct hits.

L - Limit your golf stories. One per round is more than your spouse wants to hear when you get home two hours later than expected, and all golf stories sound the same anyway.

M - Make sure you rake the bunker. It was not the group behind you that was responsible for the footprint you were in.

N - Never say "I knew I was going to do that" after hitting your shot out of bounds. If you really did "know it" you would have not hit it O.B. to begin with.

O - Offer to buy the first round of drinks if you are the big winner in your group. If you lost all that money, you would expect the winner to spring for the first round.

P - Plan on spending a long time on the golf course. Unless you are a member at a small private club, does it not appear that every year more and more hacks decide to take up the game and overcrowd every other golf course on Earth.

River School's ed tech committee defines goals, begins fund raising

technical aide will integrate the use of computers into it.

Another goal is to have students learn typing in fourth grade, using relocated Apple computers. In the future, Douglas said she hopes to expand the pilot program in kindergarten through fourth grade.

Other activities include a noon computer session which is offered as an elective to interested students.

Douglas said River School parents and staff members have been working on the program since September, in an effort to have computer labs up and running in all three fifth-grade classes by January 1994. They hope to have six computers in each classroom.

The River School Educational Technology Committee – the core group for planning and implementation of the program – has undertaken a major fund-raising campaign to see its dream become a reality.

At its September meeting, the committee developed a budget and timeline for the ed tech plan. They determined the plan would cost about $42,000, including hardware, software, furniture, electrical equipment and maintenance.

So far, more than $10,000 has been donated by parents and the River School Parent-Teacher Association, according to Douglas, who has written grant requests to various educational groups to secure money for the program.

Additionally, the committee is soliciting parents to donate computer equipment which will be loaned out to students who don't have access to computers at home.

And the Carmel Unified School District has been supportive of the effort too, according to Douglas. Board members recently approved the hiring of a part-time technical aide who will maintain the labs, organize and teach computer-related curriculum, monitor student progress and serve as a resource for students in all grade levels.

But according to Douglas, the project still needs community support, whether it be time donated to the pilot program by those with computer knowledge, donated computer equipment or financial contributions.

"Time on the computers is what kids want and what they need," Douglas said.

Doris Day's Best Friends

By DORIS DAY

Giving thanks

THIS WEEK'S column was contributed by one of my Best Friends, "Cody" Swanson - with a little help from his sweet mom, Kit. His letter says it all:

Thanksgiving may be a special holiday for people, but for those of us four-leggers who have been rescued by the kind two-leggers at the Doris Day Pet Foundation, it is indeed a special time of year, too.

I am an almost two-year-old "yellow labbish" named Cody, and when I was almost a year old, I found myself in a cage at a shelter in Southern California, waiting to be adopted or put to sleep - which ever came first!

Right before my time was up, a nice lady came to the shelter, and she must have seen something in me worth saving. She wasn't there to adopt me - just to keep me from being killed - and that's when she called for help from Judy Ruby's branch of the Doris Day Pet Foundation. Now, even though the DDPF donations are at a low point because of the economy, they didn't turn me down, but paid to have me vaccinated and more importantly, neutered, so that I couldn't bring any more unwanted doggies into this world.

But they didn't stop there... A lovely lady named Ireen found me a foster home while she searched for my perfect permanent home. We all thought she had found the ideal place but, alas, my new parents were older and when they saw me look longingly at children as they passed by the window on their way to and from school, they knew that I wasn't truly happy yet.

Now, the DDPF never gives up on a dog or cat that they have taken under their wing, so during Thanksgiving weekend last year a special DDPF foster parent, Carol, gave up over half of her Sunday to get me to my new, and final home. I arrived sight unseen and kind of nervous because of everything that I'd been through, but it was love at first sight, and I knew that I had finally come home!

I now have two teen-age "human" brothers, dad takes me for runs, mom takes me for walks and on lots of errands in the car. I have a nice fenced yard and a doggie door so that I can go in and out when I want to. I sleep on a big, soft doggie bed next to mom's side of the bed, and I am truly a full-fledged member of the family!

This has been the best year of my life, and I am truly grateful that your Carmel Valley neighbor, Doris Day, has given of her heart, soul, time and money to make my life, and the lives of my furry friends, so much better.

"Cody" Swanson
Costa Mesa, California

P.S. Doris and Judy would never ask for donations, but I will, because I'm living proof that it is a matter of life and death for my fellow four-leggers!

(Written in collaboration with Judy Ruby, Director, Doris Day Pet Foundation, Los Angeles)

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Actress Jessica Tandy had been winning critical acclaim for more than 60 years before her Oscar-winning role at age 80 in the hit movie, "Driving Miss Daisy." She explained, "Each project you do, you study from square one, and you just do it."

Neither rain, snow nor summer heat could keep Morris Jaron from his daily rounds at Ogontz Field in Elkins Park, Pennsylvania. Starting in 1979 when he was 79 years old, he turned out there every day at 6 a.m. to walk five laps around the track, then do some knee bends before taking a short hike home. Ten years of cheerily greeting joggers and nearby residents gave him status "like the mayor of the track," a granddaughter says. When Jaron and his wife of 53 years prepared to move away to a senior residence, children and grandchildren promised transportation to and from the track, and they did something more. On Jaron's 90th birthday they dedicated a new park bench there with a plaque honoring the track's "mayor" and his wife.

Costs aside, paid parking could improve downtown machinery

SOME KIND of paid-parking program in Carmel would bring a degree of expense and inconvenience to every resident, worker, employee, shopper and visitor who enters the village.

However, with growing congestion in limited space, some sort of program may be unavoidable. The question is: Can a comprehensive plan be developed that does not enrage residents, irritate tourists and scare away local, non-resident shoppers.

Kudos to anyone who can devise a fair and effective program that offers anything resembling simplicity.

At this point, we know only one thing: If people are going to tolerate this "bitter pill," as Mayor Ken White describes it, they will have to be convinced of the benefits. Hence, city council and staff will have to do quite a sales job. Public education will be a crucial component of the plan.

We believe that, however the program takes shape, there are certain principles that must be adhered to.

- The program should focus on what City Administrator Jere Kersnar called "the heart of the problem" — the 450 or so employees who park downtown, taking away spaces from shoppers and other people who rely on quick trips in and out of the city.

With paid downtown parking, workers would be encouraged to park in certain perimeter areas, including the residential districts.

- The expense of downtown parking, however, must not be so great that it discourages short visits.

Somehow, shoppers from neighboring cities must view the fee as token or negligible, while the village work force considers it sizable enough to change parking habits. How fine a line is this?

- Efforts should be made to dovetail the goals of parking with Carmel's new trip-reduction legislation. Improving opportunities for ride-sharing and public transportation would lower parking demand.

- Employees and business people should be convinced the city seeks to do more than "influence their parking behavior." The "supply" end of the equation is being addressed. In this light, the feasibility of a parking garage should be studied concurrently with any new permit requirements; it should not appear to be an afterthought.

Workers and employers should feel confident that the program is not punitive, but a means of creating order and improving the machinery of downtown.

- Carmel residents should not have to pay anything for permits to park either on their streets or in commercial areas. After all, one should not ever have to pay admission to one's home.

These two coaches are winners

WE HAVE had our fill of national horror stories involving the ugly side of high school and collegiate football coaches. Tales of physical abuse and sexual favors have made their way into the headlines.

It then becomes imperative that we bring attention to two local gentlemen — Craig Johnston, head coach of the Carmel High Padres and Jeff Young, head coach of the Robert Louis Stevenson Pirates — who carry through their important jobs with professionalism, dignity and class.

Like parents and teachers, coaches have a tremendous impact on today's youth. It is with pride that Carmel High and Robert Louis Stevenson can point to these two varsity coaches as examples of role models that work.

As the football season has wound to a close, we salute Johnston and Young — two men who embody the spirit of what the game is truly all about.

'GMA' show was visual feast

Dear Editor:

It is always a treat to revisit one of the loveliest cities in our travel experiences. And the Nov. 9 Good Morning America gave us that opportunity.

In Carmel and vicinity, there are new scenes every day and yet there is a variety of constants that are compelling to repeat, and the ABC show did a fine job of highlighting these.

Of course, a lot had to be left out or glossed over quickly in view of TV's time restraints. We didn't get a thing about Pacific Grove's Monarch butterflies nor even a glimpse of Mission Trail. ABC focused its cameras on big ticket items like Pebble Beach golf and expensive hotels and eating places, but that's par with network morning shows.

There were some negatives such as inordinate attention to Clint Eastwood and his Carmel investments and superficial reference to Robinson Jeffers. The comment that Tor House was more important than his poetry might be true for ABC TV staff, but not to anyone who has read poems like Shine Perishing Republic. Jeffers wrote immortally, even about Tor House, and literary history will take note of him.

And speaking of Carmel poets, they could have mentioned Don Blanding, the Edgar Guest of Hawaii and Carmel, who wrote for plain folks and did it so superbly.

We liked very much the segments of Leon Panetta and Doris Day. And the beach scenes were a visual feast! All in all, it was a great broadcast.

Veterans Day tradition

Dear Editor:

Since it is my privilege to attend Veteran's Day services in Devendorf Park each year, this year was especially rewarding as I witnessed the excellent "presentation of colors" by the honor guard from Monterey High School.

How fortunate we are to have this tradition carried out by the youth of our area now that Fort Ord is closing.

Under the capable leadership of Commander Chapin, the America Legion Post of Carmel has given me a "new" tradition to our youth and our veterans.

Carmel Commentary

By HOWAD SKIDMORE

Perhaps Carmel is older than 77

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA threw itself a wonderful birthday party on a recent Sunday at Sunset Center. Maggie Hardy, the event chairperson, wrote a Carmel Commentary about it in the Pine Cone (Oct. 28). It was headed, significantly, "Carmel turns 77 — time to celebrate."

"Carmel has always appreciated a good party," Chairperson Maggie wrote. "And our(s)...is the best kind. Seventy-seven years together. A long time."

Well said, indeed! But there is something puzzling about "Carmel is 77."

My wife, Zaza, and I worked at the birthday bash. We were in the wine, beer and soft drinks booth. And one of the friends we served there was the prominent man-about-Carmel, Glenn Leidig. Ordering a wine, Glenn explained that he was on an errand of mercy. The wine was not for himself. It was for volunteer worker Melanie Billig, diligently remaining, as so many others were doing, at her duty station. Seeing Glenn raised for me the question of Carmel's reported age. As is well known, Glenn has already celebrated a half-dozen more birthdays than Carmel is said to have reached. And yet Glenn has called Carmel home all his life.

HOWARD SKIDMORE

At the age of a day or two, Glenn came to live at his family's home, already established at San Carlos and Seventh. He would have been there sooner, but he wanted to be with his mother. And she wanted to be with her mother in Salinas for his arrival. Glenn and Marian still live at the homestead site, but in a modern building. Brother Dale, like Glenn, has also celebrated more birthdays than Carmel acknowledges for itself.

Older than his birthplace?

This raises the question: Can a person be older than his birthplace? And then there is another Carmel resident who arrived even before Glenn or Dale did — almost 140 years earlier, in fact. The revered Father Junipero Serra founded his mission at the southern edge of today's Carmel-by-the-Sea in 1771. The city is justifiably proud of this and features Father Serra's Carmel Mission on its official seal.

And, of course, to get to the point, it is that same city seal that reveals how Carmel can claim to be younger than some of its residents. And just about everything else, including buildings and the very street grid.

The words on the seal are these: "City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Incorporated 1916." And so Carmel chooses to set its birthday clock running from one legal date in its long history. To some, this might seem like a person basing his or her natal anniversaries not on a birth certificate, but on some other document, perhaps a wedding license.

Surely, incorporation to the residents of 1916 must have been a dramatic, significant event, a coming of age for the little village. But is that event 77 years later the appropriate one on which to base Carmel's stated age today?

New York, New York, directly across the continent from Carmel, became the City of Greater New York by a new charter in 1898. However, when the Big Apple counts its birthdays it goes back to the Dutch colony founded in 1625. But, of course, Carmel cannot be expected to follow any example set by a metropolis. As Mayor Ken White said recently in another context, "This town does not like to be treated like any...urban city."

Historical edifice

Even so, as some of Carmel's older distinguished citizens might attest, there are some advantages in being perceived as a historical edifice. Among cities, consider Williamsburg, Va., and the national respect its glorious history wins it.

At the least, when Carmel states its age, should it not pick a year that does not exclude by implication so many exciting, colorful and interesting events that give it its unique past?

The First Murphy House goes back to 1902. In its parlor is a framed photograph of a man in a bowler hat seated in a gig, a light two-wheeled carriage drawn by a single horse. Man, gig and horse, frozen in an obviously earlier time, are on a slope. Spread below them, among the manzanita bushes and a few trees, are sandy trails tantalizingly half-recognizable as some of today's familiar village streets.

This photograph is also a large mural at the First Interstate Bank on Carmel Rancho Lane. Neither at First Murphy or the bank is any information given. However, a close study of the terrain in the photo, frequent examination on the ground by foot, bicycle and car, and the historical record at Harrison Memorial Library all suggest the answers.

The photo shows the birth of Carmel. The sandy trails are the intersection of Ocean and Junipero Avenues. The latter was originally named Broadway, indicating that this crossing was to be the heart of the new Carmel City. Only the southbound lane of the double-lane

Petitioners protest management cut at downtown P.O.

Richards will report to work at the Carmel Post Office main branch on Via Nona Marie, at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

The petition drive is being sponsored by the Carmel Residents Association. Those gathering signatures were in evidence Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Affecting service

"There will be some effect on service," Richards said this week, agreeing with much of what petitioners argue. "Not having a station manager will cause certain problems."

There will be, he explained, less supervision of staff at the downtown branch. Much of the trouble-shooting will need to be conducted by telephone. And "response time" on complaints will be slower.

Yet, he said, the average patron who has no problems or questions "will not feel the changes."

Nationwide, postal management positions are being trimmed by 40 percent, according to Carmel Postmaster Don Ask, who is on vacation this week and was not available to comment on the petition drive.

Technically, the downtown branch is not a full-fledged post office. It is, rather, a "finance station," and so its new budget does not call for an on-site manager.

A finance clerk will be in charge of the downtown branch, and its total staff will be reduced from 14 to 13 employees.

Ask has requested an exception for the reduction at the downtown branch, which is remarkably busy despite its lesser status. Regional postal officials, however, turned down the request.

"It will be possible for the downtown branch to function without an on-site manager, but there will be an erosion of service," said David Maradei, who was the downtown station manager for 15 years, until his retirement in November 1992.

Maradei led the petition effort.

"It was my experience that 50 to 75 percent of the time, I was working to help people solve their problems with the mail, passports, purchases or complaints," he said. "The personal contact was one of the ingredients that made this post office special."

Other post offices in the area have smaller revenues and fewer deliveries, "yet they all have managers," Maradei said.

The main branch will have in house the postmaster and two managers — Richards and Ray Wong, who will remain stationed at Via Nona Marie. According to Richards, any of the three could be called to the 5th Avenue operation to supervise or resolve difficulties.

"Because I know the operations best from having worked (downtown), I am probably the most likely to be called over," Richards said.

The petition is addressed to James Aanenson and Ken Fennell, who are, respectively, manager of the San Jose District of the U.S. Postal Service, and manager of post office operations.

The petition states the downtown branch is "an integral part of life in this village, and we urge you to take action to assure the citizens of Carmel-by-the-Sea that their postal service will not be downgraded."

Might Carmel be older than 77?

The man in the gig, then, must be a proud Santiago Duckworth. He and his brother, Belisario, were Monterey real estate men. In the 1880s they began to develop Carmel City on the land holdings of Hector Escolle, a Monterey baker.

Lot sales were slow, and about 1895 a bank credit squeeze forced the brothers to sell out. The subsequent story of Carmel development under two Franks — Devendorf and Powell — has been well told. In 1903, the name Carmel-by-the-Sea was coined. Soon to come were Bohemia amidst the pines and other sparkling chapters of local lore.

Years ago in New York, a young reporter was sent by his editor to a posh apartment on Park Avenue. There the general manager of the august Metropolitan Opera was holding a birthday press conference for two of his stars, Helen Jepson and Rose Bampton.

After the champagne and cake, the reporter gauchely asked the divas if they were divulging the number of years being celebrated. With smiles, they ducked the question. Not knowing when to quit, the reporter looked up the ages in the record books and put them in his story.

That grown-older reporter does think that Carmel-by-the-Sea could put on its seal, instead of "Incorporated 1916," something sexier, like "Over 200 Years of History," or even a simple, "Since 1771."

However, if Carmel's desire is to insist it is a young 77, it's okay with him. He won't make the mistake again of insisting on telling a gracious lady's age.

BASKETBALL PREVIEW: C.H.S. BOYS

Padres will try to live up to lofty expectations

Carmel opens on road Saturday; makes home debut Monday night

By GARTH MERRILL

CARMEL HIGH School's boys varsity basketball team has earned both significant pre-season honors and expectations, as it is ranked eighth in the State Division IV pre-season rankings by Cal-Hi Sports, a leading prep sports publication.

The Padres' R.J. Powell also was selected for the Division IV preseason All-State team, while teammate Jason Edwards was named among "Players to Watch" in the Central Coast Section.

The divisional rankings, based on school size, list Carmel behind No. 7 Terra Linda of San Rafael, No. 6 Palma and No. 5 Garces of Bakersfield. Serra High of Cardena is the top-ranked team in the division.

It's all pretty high praise for a team that didn't even win its league last season, that has only three starters returning and not one player who might be considered really, well, tall.

"We're going to try to live up to it," said CHS coach Rich Frank. "It's real exciting, especially since we haven't played a single game yet."

Last season, the Padres were 22-6 overall and finished second to Alisal in the Mission Trail Athletic League with a 9-3 conference record. The Padres lost in the Central Coast Section semifinals to Palma.

Frank will have the first chance to see his 1993-94 team in action this weekend as the Padres open the preseason on the road at 7 p.m. Saturday against Watsonville. The first home game will take place at 7 p.m. Monday against North County.

Impact player, strong team

Frank said the state-wide recognition received by his team is a credit to the impressive record it rolled up last year on the way to the CCS semifinals.

"I also think it's the result of having an impact player and group of strong players around him," Frank said.

Powell, the 6-1 senior who will go to Pepperdine University in the fall on an athletic scholarship (see related story, page one), is the Padres' "impact player." He will be joined by seniors Jason Edwards and Joey Bernhard as the only returning starters.

At 6-3, Edwards is Carmel's "big man." He started the last half of the last season for CHS after his brother, Ryan, went down with illness.

"He's really the only size we have," Frank said. "He's a real strong kid. He plays real well around the basket. We'll be expecting some big things from him off the boards."

The starting lineup should be rounded out by junior Juan Prieto and sophomore Ryan Sanchez. The 6-foot Prieto is a "very aggressive" player who plays bigger than his size, and Sanchez is "the most improved player in the program," Frank said.

"The kids coming up are a good group," he said. The coach noted it is early in the season and, though he expects his lineup to hold, he said several good athletes were just hitting the floor after ending fall

Padres' senior pitcher signs letter of intent to attend USF

MIKE PALSHAW, a 17-year-old senior at Carmel High School, has signed a 1994 National Letter of Intent to attend and play baseball on a scholarship for the University of San Francisco.

The tall, hard-throwing southpaw racked up 102 strikeouts in just 71 innings while allowing only 38 hits last season for the Padres.

Palshaw's season was punctuated when he participated in the 1993 Junior Olympics in Knoxville, Tenn., and for the Honolulu Sharks in the Area Code Games in San Diego. Pitching for the Sharks gave Palshaw a chance to perform in front of 200 professional baseball scouts and more than 75 Division I college coaches.

"It was summer opportunities like these," Palshaw said, "that got the attention of the college coaches."

Palshaw's manager at USF next season will be Rich Hill, who recently joined the Division I school following six successful years as coach of Cal Lutheran University in Thousand Oaks.

Palshaw also will have a new manager this season since Duke Quinones has decided not to return to lead CHS.

A pupil of former Carmel High star and now baseball instructor Guy DuBets for the past eight years, Palshaw, 6-3 and 175 pounds, hopes to follow in the footsteps of Kerry Woodson and Mark Williams. Both Woodson and Williams, CHS graduates, also worked under Woodson pitched last season for the Seattle Mariners, while Williams is looking forward to his first season as a freshman at Stanford University.

Palshaw's older brother, David, a 1992 graduate of Carmel High, is a pitcher for Dartmouth College in the Ivy League.

CCS loss provides '94 incentive

NEXT SEASON'S goal can be a Central Coast Section Division IV playoff victory.

But Friday night's loss to Cupertino in the first round of the CCS playoffs didn't leave the Robert Louis Stevenson varsity football team hanging its heads. The 34-14 loss to No. 1 seed Cupertino may have ended the Pirates' season, but the team's bright moments from early September on will be fondly remembered.

RLS finished its 1993 campaign with a 6-4-1 record, which included four shutout wins and bragging rights for the peninsula with convincing victories over both Carmel and Pacific Grove.

In qualifying for the CCS playoffs, it was the first time an RLS football team had accomplished that feat since 1981.

And it might have been different at the end of Friday night's game in Cupertino had things gone smoother at the beginning. The Pirates were just one yard from putting the game's first score on the board when a fumble recovery by the Pioneers turned the tide.

Cupertino wasted little time in capitalizing on the turnover as quarterback Tim DeHart hit Josh Deale on a stunning 98-yard touchdown pass. Just like that, the Pirates were down 7-0 instead of being up 7-0 — a 14-point turnaround that the team never quite recovered from.

A Mike Prowell two-yard touchdown run with just 25 seconds left in the first half cut the Cupertino lead to 14-7. Cupertino scored early in the third quarter to up the lead to 21-7 when the Pirates' J.B. Williams struck right back on the kickoff when he scored on an electrifying 85-yard run.

Cupertino, now 9-1-1, locked up the game later in the third quarter with two touchdown passes to provide the 20-point margin.

As the Pirates' season is ending, Cupertino's is continuing on Saturday in a game against Archbishop Mitty at DeAnza College.

Stoney-Stevens leads young soccer team

■ CHS field hockey unit seeks steady improvement

AFTER FINISHING in the middle of the pack for the past few seasons, this could be the season for the Carmel High School boys' soccer team to break through as a real force in the Mission Trail Athletic League.

This year's squad consists of about 50 players, the biggest turnout ever.

Among the team's standouts is Cheyenne Stoney-Stevens, who is one of the top soccer talents in this area. He is a member of the Olympic Development Program and has put in a lot of time practicing during the off-season.

"The best thing about Cheyenne is that he goes 100 percent all the time," said head coach Jeff Wright. "He's only got one gear."

Joining Stevens will be the two captains senior Jono Spaulding and junior Melissa May. May is the first woman to ever be the captain of the soccer team, but she isn't alone. In fact, Wright expects the Padres to field a girls' soccer team in the next few years, which will be a giant step forward.

This big question for the team this year will be whether its raw talent can overcome its relative lack of experience.

This team just might have the right mix of leadership and youth, however, to go a long way.

• Girls Field Hockey

The buzz word around the field hockey practices this year is improvement, which is the only way the Padres can go after last season.

Last season, the Padres were forced to rely on young players to win games for them. This year, all those young players are back with a year or two of experience.

Carmel will be lead by its captain and co-captain. The captain is Lansi Brockmire, who was selected for her defense, while the co-captain is Sunshine Pinney, who is touted for her offensive skills. Madeline Carr will man the nets.

"We will be much better than last year," said Brenda Lamika, head coach. "Our endurance and our enthusiasm is really amazing."

• Water Polo

The season came to an end Saturday, Nov. 20 for Carmel High. They were defeated 25-11 in the first round of Central Coast Section playoff action by Harbor High at De Anza College in Cupertino.

Leading scorers for the Padres were Kyle Nichols with four goals, Steve Bonanfant, Aaron Gaily and Mike Allaire with two goals apiece, and John Rigney with one. The Padres concluded a successful season in which they finished 19-17.

Talented Padres set sights on MTAL title

sports. Football players John Geisler and Dustin Nagai and water polo player Aaron Gaily have recently suited up, and all are expected to see plenty of playing time.

"We're young. We kind of lack experience," Frank admitted. But he said his squad should be as competitive as any other in the MTAL, a league he said "looks real tough."

"I see the MTAL as a group of four or five schools, any of which could beat another on any given night."

Frank said a team could end up losing three or four games and still win the league title.

One of the CHS players who wants a piece of that championship is Powell, who has yet to win a league title in a high school career that has been otherwise complete. He likes the preseason picture.

"It's open," Powell said. "I think we can take it if everybody comes to play."

Carmel's Will Gahagan earns tennis triumph

CARMEL'S WILL Gahagan, who has enjoyed years of success on the tennis court, teamed last week with Ed Oeschlaeger of Walnut Creek to capture the men's 80-year-old doubles division at the United States Tennis Association Doubles Intersectional Championships in Sacramento.

Gahagan and Oeschlaeger downed Lynn Baker and Robert Cooley of Dallas in the finale 6-4, 6-2.

Serving as Northern California's representatives, Gahagan and Oeschlaeger did not lose one set in their four matches. The duo qualified for the championships by prevailing in the USTA National Hardcourts played in May in Santa Barbara.

At the recently completed championships in Sacramento, more than 150 men and women players competed in six age divisions (30s to 80s). Buoyed by Gahagan's doubles victory, Northern California won the overall team title as it ousted Southern California and Florida.

Gahagan plays out of the Carmel Valley Racquet Club.

EVERY WEEK during the football season, Doug Thompson, managing editor of The Carmel Pine Cone, will challenge a guest forecaster in picking the top 10 games from the pro and collegiate slate.

LAST WEEK: On this weekend of thanks, The Editor can give thanks to two teams from Southern California—UCLA and the Raiders—for enabling him to break his two-week losing streak. Buoyed by the Bruins' nail-biting win Saturday over USC and the Raiders' victory Sunday over San Diego, The Editor finished 7-3 to top David Eagle, owner of The Clam Box restaurant in Carmel, who came in at 5-5. The Editor is now 6-4-2.

'The Nutcracker'

Visions of sugar plums dance Saturday in Salinas

DANA STAGPOLE of the San Francisco Ballet Company will dance the role of the Sugar Plum Fairy in 'The Nutcracker.'

A 28-YEAR tradition continues on Saturday, Nov. 27 when the Salinas Performing Arts presents its holiday gift to the community — the classic Christmas ballet, The Nutcracker.

Performances will begin at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. in Sherwood Hall at the Salinas Community Center, 940 North Main Street in Salinas. Advance tickets may be charged by phone at 758-7477. Tickets may also be purchased at the Sherwood Hall Box Office.

Admission costs $13 for adults, $7.75 for children 12 years and under. All proceeds benefit the Salinas Performing Arts Scholarship fund.

The Sugar Plum Fairy and her Cavalier will be played by Dana Stagpole and Sedley Chew, soloists with the San Francisco Ballet Company.

Local community members from the Salinas Performing Arts Ballet Company will be actors and dancers in the "Party," "Dream" and "Snow" scenes.

Representatives of the Jeanne Robinson Dance Arts Studio of Salinas, Hidden Valley Dance Center and Hartnell College Dance Department will also perform.

The production is choreographed and directed by Joann Adair with assistance from Jeanne Robinson.

Adair comments, "It seems that this year there are more families in our area working around the clock to make this production particularly splendid. The cast and crew boasts an FBI agent, a school principal, agricultural workers and social workers, as well as many professional dancers and local dance students."

One such dancer, Patrick Thornberry, appears in the leading roles of the Snow King and Russian Trepak.

A recipient of Salinas Performing Arts scholarships, he recently graduated from the National Ballet School of Canada in Toronto. Thornberry began his dance training in Salinas with Adair.

Once again this year the Santa Cruz Ballet Theater will perform the final act of the ballet, "The Kingdom of Sweets," with Jean Dunphy as choreographer and director.

The enchanting story of Clara and the Nutcracker Prince and their journey to "The Land of the Sugar Plum Fairy" features a large cast of story book characters, a Christmas tree that magically grows, the beautiful "Land of the Snows" and the tempting "Kingdom of Sweets."

When first performed in St. Petersburg in 1892, The Nutcracker was criticized for not adhering to the style of the day.

Since then, the ballet has captured audiences with its fantasy, delighting young and old through the decades.

The orphans are two teen-aged brothers living in a Philadelphia slum some years after the death of their mother. The older brother, Treat, supports his younger, slightly retarded brother, Phillip, by resorting to a life of petty crime — if you can call robbing people at knifepoint "petty crime."

Younger brother Phillip is a recluse who never leaves the apartment and in fits of angst hides for hours in a closet. One night Treat returns from cruising the bars after a successful day's haul, bringing with him a drunk, middle-aged man whom he intends to hold hostage for ransom.

Substitute father

When he sobers up, Harold turns out to be a swindler who has stolen some negotiable securities and bearer bonds and is on the lam from the mob in Chicago. In the second act, the play takes an interesting turn when Harold assumes the role of substitute father to the brothers. He brings order into their lives, helps the younger brother to want to see the outside world, and introduces Treat to white collar crime.

As Treat, Peter Cash appears in the first scene looking like a street punk in a dirty army fatigue jacket, a grimy red baseball cap worn backwards and filthy baggy pants. Cash's hair is matted and greasy, his face covered with grime. His language is of the street, tough and violent.

Open tuna cans

The set by Joseph S. Bryant IV is marvelous, with its cast-off furniture — the kind apartment dwellers abandon on the sidewalks of inner cities — and its incredible clutter. We see on the dining room table countless open cans of Starkist Tuna, dirty dishes and empty jars of mayonnaise.

In the second act, after the arrival of Harold, we see a miraculous transformation. The apartment is neat and clean, Harold is making and serving meals, and Phillip is learning more about the big world outside his door.

One of the best moments of the play is when Treat first appears in the second act. He is squeaky clean in an elegant, three-piece Pierre Cardin pin-striped suit purchased with Harold's American Express card. Treat is running errands for

Two-man show at College of Law features landscape photography and sculpture

A TWO-MAN show by photographer Richard Garrod and sculptor Ken Wiese is open through Jan. 3 at the Monterey College of Law at 404 Franklin Street in Monterey.

The college's gallery is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

This exhibit features natural form pieces by sculptor Ken Wiese that will complement the grandeur of nature as depicted in Richard Garrod's scenic photographs.

Garrod's images, in color and black and white, reflect the beauty of Death Valley, Big Sur, the Sierra Nevadas, the Colorado Rockies and the rugged Oregon coast.

Garrod of Monterey earned his masters degree at the University of California at Berkeley. He has studied with Ansel Adams, Brett Weston and Minor White.

His photographs are in a number of private and institutional collections, including the Smithsonian Institution, the George Eastman House, the Polaroid Corporation and the Oakland Museum of Art.

Sculptor Wiese has lived in Carmel for 40 years and was a teacher in the Carmel Unified School District for 35 years. He earned his bachelor and master of arts degrees from Fresno State University and studied at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Berkeley.

Wiese carves directly in wood and stone and works in welded steel, cast metals, resin and ceramics. His work is exhibited in galleries throughout the United States and private collections here and abroad.

RICHARD GARROD'S 'Rocks, Snow' is displayed at the Monterey College of Law.

Trailside Galleries will host first annual 'Art for Life' benefit Dec. 2 in Carmel

TRAILSIDE AMERICANA Galleries will host a benefit art show, "Art for Life," from 6 to 9 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 2 at the gallery. The show will offer a unique opportunity to collect a "palette painting."

This is a small painting done directly on an artist's palette and rarely offered for public purchase. Thirty-three palettes will be auctioned off by silent bid, with Trailside donating all proceeds to LifeSavers for Youth. This organization comprises a group of concerned citizens dedicated to the goal of preventing suicide among young people.

To add to the evening's festivities, nationally prominent sculptor Blair Buswell will create a sculpture from a live model during the evening. This "on the spot" sculpture will then be offered by live auction as a grand finale to the event. According to Rob Pitzer, director of the gallery,

'MISSION GATE,' a palette painting by Grant MacDonald, will be auctioned at Trailside's 'Art for Life' benefit on Dec. 2.

"Trailside Americana is now a part of the Monterey Peninsula, and we would like to personally give something back to the community that has welcomed us so generously. This year will be the first of an annual event held in December to say thank you and directly benefit our local community."

In support of the benefit, 16 local restaurants will provide catering for the evening. Participating vendors include Central 159, Fandango, Fresh Cream, Inn at Spanish Bay and Rio Grill, among others. The culinary creations will be served with wines from Ventana Vineyards. Guests will also have a chance at winning a two-day "romantic escape to Big Sur," courtesy of the famed Ventana Inn. Trailside Americana is located at Lincoln and Sixth in Carmel. Further information about the benefit is available by calling 624-5071.

Pratt opens Keyboard Artist Series with a bang

■ The young musician is pronounced 'a bright rising star in the pianistic firmament.'

By NATHALIE PLOTKIN

AWADAGIN PRATT, a bright rising star in the pianistic firmament, opened the Keyboard Artist Series last Sunday afternoon in Carmel's Sunset Center Theater.

Advance notices informed the audience of his unusually extensive musical training. He received diplomas in three different performance areas from the Peabody Conservatory, where he was the first student in their history to do so.

We were also insistently told of his personal idiosyncrasies such as his hairdo and the height of his piano bench.

Yet neither item has any bearing on his musical qualifications. One wondered if the classical music audience, usually rather conservative in its outlook, would be willing to accept an unorthodox presence.

Major career in the making

Those who weren't and stayed home missed a very special experience. I came away with a premonition and an excitement that those present were in on the beginning of something very special.

This young pianist has a diverse talent, a wealth of knowledge about musical content and an ability to apply his manifold gifts to the works he plays. There is surely a major career in the making for this fine artist.

He began the recital with the Beethoven "Sonata No. 30 in E Major" Op. 109 and followed it with the "Sonata No. 30 in A Flat Major" Op. 110. This is daring but also inspired programming, since the music is so sympathetically conceived that the second piece seemed to grow from the first.

Architecturally pure

Pratt's quietly authoritative handling of the subtle crescendos which arose frequently was architecturally pure in line and progression.

His dynamic control was exceptional. There were tone colors that ranged through the entire aural scale, a refinement only a pianist of far greater experience can be expected to provide.

The variation movement of Op. 109 was an impressive display of sensitive pianism. It had lovely subtleties of line, but also strength, depth and firmness where needed.

Op. 110 opened with an introspective melody which sang delicately and clearly. It built to passionate peaks and ran the gamut of musical emotions with assured sensitivity and superior technique.

The strong, exciting Scherzo was followed by an almost vocally expounded Adagio of great expressive thoughtfulness. The fugal finale was the summation and climax of the work, and it was a singularly accomplished interpretation.

The "Four Ballades" Op. 10 by Brahms are gem-like short pieces seldom played hereabouts in concert. Pratt's traversal was revelatory.

In the first section his gentle, yet pointed touch, the narrative quality he imparted to the music and the contrasting strong middle section were in perfect accord.

The following three works generally followed this formula and were all sympathetically expounded.

"Num Komm der Heiden Heiland" by Bach-Busoni acted as a prelude for a grandiloquent traversal of the Bach-Busoni transcription of the "Chaconne performer. Here too, the clarity and fleetness of the playing sparkled. The chords rang with full majesty, and the interpretive skill was completely appropriate to the transcription.

'You're wonderful'

After the playing of the Rachmaninoff "Prelude" Op. 23 No. 4, the artist sat down to play another encore, and a

'I came away with a premonition and an excitement that those present were in on the beginning of something very special.'

for Unaccompanied Violin."

Again displaying his impressively intelligent artistry, Pratt created a highly convincing pianistic version of this quintessentially violinistic composition.

While violin double and triple stops present no problem for a keyboard instrument, those sweeping thirty-second note runs and intricately figured arpeggios can be finger twisters for either young voice called out, "You're wonderful."

The rest of the audience applauded in agreement. That second encore was the Schumann-Liszt "Widmung." Sorry if you missed it.

Next in the series, Simone Pedroni, the Gold Medal winner of the 1993 Van Cliburn Competition, will perform at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 12.

Jazz Tides

By JOHN DETRO

Mixed Jazz Bag will keep playing free Sunday night sets despite closure of PG's Portofino Cafe

MAY YOUR celebration of Thanksgiving Day be a joyous occasion. One cause for gratitude: The tradition of free Sunday night jazz will continue hereabouts despite Barbara Murphy's decision to shut down operations at the popular Portofino Cafe.

Barbara declared that she might end the Pacific Grove venue's eight-year run due to lease hassles at the proposed new site (the old Grove Theater) and use limitations at the old. The definite closure followed a final Sunday evening appearance by guitarist Joseph Lucido's Mixed Jazz Bag. (That unit developed a firm and delighted following there over a period of two-and-a-half years.)

Flugelhornist Brian Stock, whom I chatted with between sets by the John Cortes Quintet at Villa Pompeii in the Carmel Rancho Center, has been with Mixed Jazz Bag the whole way. Brian said the group won't miss a beat, moving over to the attractive Juice 'n' Java (downtown Pacific Grove).

"Yep," Stock said, "we'll feature the usual players every Sunday from 7 until 10 p.m. — Joseph, myself, Weber Drummond (keyboards), Dennis Murphy (electric bass), Kenny Stahl (flute), Anthony Jackson (drums). It's the same setup as at Portofino. Never a cover charge."

Juice 'n' Java has a no-smoking policy and does not serve alcohol. So youngsters are able to enjoy the programming in a healthy atmosphere.

"They have a fireplace," Brian added. "It's a great room in which to gather and listen throughout the winter months."

Stock mentioned as well that Lucido's gang now works the Monday night slot at the Doubletree Hotel's Brasstree Lounge — 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. and no cover.

Barbara's booking a few acts into other facilities. "I'm tired," she said shortly after Portofino went dark. "It has been fun and a lot of hard work. I'm going to take a couple of months off and think about the future. About what's next."

She and her Portofino Cafe have been creative friends to the community. Thanks, dear person.

Good reception

Brian noted as well that the new CD by area guitarist and composer Jess Knubis has been getting plenty of radio airplay. Stock is featured on the session entitled Sanctuary — eight tunes celebrating the California coast — along with Drummond and percussionist Helcio Milito and harmonica man Chuck Fendall and other locals.

Jess and wife Gabriela run an advertising and public relations agency in Monterey. He has been playing gigs since boyhood and felt new musical themes rising in his blood as he got to know this region better and better. Check the usual outlets; the self-produced package is well worth having.

As I've said before, Jess reminds the experienced listener of New York guitarist Barry Galbraith. Barry, bassist Milt Hinton and drummer Osie Johnson were known as The Trio in the Manhattan '50s.

If any recording artist said "Get me The Trio," any producer knew exactly what was meant — and Knubis treats his instrument with the Galbraith brand of tuneful, relaxed respect.

Holiday fare

The Cortes Quintet will be back at Villa Pompeii on Thanksgiving evening. The four-hour gig starts at 6 p.m. and as per usual there's no door charge.

Because of the holiday, there will be some personnel shifts. You'll get John on multiple saxes, smooth young trumpeter Chuck MacKinnon, San Francisco pianist Don Albers (veteran bebopper), Bryan McConnell on bass and drummer Bob Blankenship.

After taking his degree in jazz studies, Chuck kept to the New York/New Jersey area and spent many months with a band made up of Art Blakey and Horace Silver alumni.

Last Thursday, regular trumpet man Oscar Williams rendered a Body and Soul of great beauty. He always has been a strong player; now his use of silence and selective repetitions must be called wise.

Villa Pompeii just might have an announcement that will please lovers of big band jazz. Watch this space.

Nuclear Whales: Monty Pythonesque humor, fancy fingerwork

By LYN BRONSON

LAST THURSDAY'S concert by the Nuclear Whales Saxophone Orchestra at Sunset Center, the latest presentation in the Performance Carmel series, turned out to be another solid hit.

This zany group with a zany name does not always take itself too seriously, and its members poked gentle fun at themselves, their instruments and just about anything else that struck their fancy.

When the musicians first appeared on stage, two of them were wearing white head sashes adorned with Japanese characters and the red circle from Japan's flag.

Except for the fact that they were in formal dress, they looked like Kamikaze pilots. Their spokesman, Don Stevens, explained that they had recently returned from a tour in Japan, and these head sashes were among the souvenirs they had picked up.

He also mentioned that the group's name had given the Japanese concert promoters considerable difficulty and it came out in Japanese as "Atom Bomb Big Fish Orchestra of Saxophones," which leads us to believe that the name would be as unwieldy in any other language as it is in English.

Beautiful 'Harlem Nocturne'

But once past the Monty Python aspect of the group's name, the evening turned out to be an amusing cabaret act combining subtle (and sometimes outrageous) humor with a variety of music ranging from the ridiculous to the sublime.

At one extreme we were treated to all the rude sounds the contrabass sax can produce. At the other end of the spectrum we heard the most beautifully arranged rendition of that immortal saxophone classic, Harlem Nocturne, that I have ever heard. In Harlem Nocturne, Kristen Strom was the splendid soloist on alto sax.

Some other selections tended to miss their mark. I regret to report that Maple Leaf Rag, Danny Boy, and Midnight in Moscow are not at their best played by a saxophone ensemble.

But other selections, like Tiger Rag and surprisingly enough, The Blue Danube Waltz, worked very well.

Like a snake charmer

One of the great hits of the evening was the Casbah Shuffle, which featured Rach Cztar on the soprano sax. Cztar played his instrument like a snake charmer.

While playing he descended from the stage into the audience, giving us a close-up look at his considerable instrumental technique.

Cztar, who understandably goes by the more informal name of "Skipper," was celebrating his birthday on the evening of the concert.

In the spirit of the event he wore a succession of outrageous party hats throughout the evening. A good mimic, he treated us to some excellent comic bits with a variety of clever accents which added to the fun of the evening.

Handfuls of Quaker Oats

Another very amusing production number was Tiger Rag with Art Springs, who is also something of a vocalist, belting out some very convincing rap music, and Don Stevens throwing handfuls of Quaker Oats into the air for a reason which he explained but I have now forgotten, since it didn't make much sense at the time.

Although there was a printed program for the performance, the group winged their way through the evening, deleting some numbers, adding others and changing the order of the presentation.

But it didn't matter. The audience was happy with what it got and was amply rewarded with two encores, The Stars and Stripes Forever (which the orchestra has played at the White House) and the Death and Transfiguration theme from the film 2001, by Richard Strauss.

Coming up at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 11, Performance Carmel will present the next concert in its series — a performance by the Edlos, a vocal quartet, whose concert here last year was a sell-out.

The Edlos will perform Christmas favorites, Gregorian chants, traditional spirituals and folk ballads.

Tickets for the event are priced at $15 and may be purchased by calling 624-3996.

All aboard Del Monte Express – Home of the 'Adult Five-Napkin Burger'

BURGER LOVERS rejoice. At Del Monte Express – Home of the "Adult five-Napkin Burger" – freshly-prepared hamburgers come in one size only... big.

But there are plenty of variations on the theme. In fact, there are nearly 20 different hamburgers to choose from at Del Monte Express in Monterey, each prepared to order and loaded with every topping imaginable. Express burgers are hand-made of lean ground beef, grilled to retain the natural juices, and served on a homemade bun with a generous portion of piping hot french fries.

Previously located on Del Monte Avenue, Owner Joe Ferreira opened the "Fremont Station" in 1989, keeping the friendly service, award-winning burger menu and Southern Pacific Railroad theme. Two model trains run around the restaurant's perimeter while railroad cars bearing the names of local businesses await a turn on the track.

"We're well known here on the Peninsula," Ferreira said. "Once they're here, I know they're coming back."

Try "Sante Fe's Super Chief No. 17," a burger with tender slices of ham and turkey, topped with melted American and Swiss cheeses.

The more adventurous may want to hop aboard the "Orient Limited," a burger blended with minced onions and teriyaki marinade sauce, topped with two kinds of cheeses, crushed pineapple and cooked in sweet and sour sauce.

In the mood for something different? Del Monte Express offers seven different chicken sandwiches, all as decadent as the hamburgers. The "Mountain Bluebird" is topped with melted Swiss cheese and sautéed mushrooms, while the "San Diego" is cooked in a homemade Mexican salsa – hot or mild.

For lighter fare, there are four different salads to choose from, served with homemade dressings.

The Del Monte Express "Good Morning Breakfast Menu" includes 12 different omelettes, each as creatively named and prepared as the hamburgers.

Try the "Morning Zephyr" – scrambled eggs blended with sautéed mushrooms, green onions, diced Canadian bacon and topped with melted Swiss cheese. All egg dishes are served with country fries and choice of toast or biscuits.

Breakfast possibilities

Other breakfast possibilities include biscuits with poached eggs, biscuits with gravy, chicken fried steak, pancakes, French toast, Belgian waffles and a myriad of other choices – even "Hoghips and Cackleberries," served any style.

Children seven and under can choose from four breakfasts at less than $2.50.

Bringing up the rear is the caboose room, which offers cocktails, beer and wine inside a unique replica of the era.

Noting a family of four can have dinner at Del Monte Express for under $25, including beverages, Ferreira said: "The main emphasis is for us to put out a consistently quality product at a reasonable price that everyone will enjoy."

Del Monte Express is located at 2329 North Fremont Blvd. in Monterey. In the dining car, breakfast is served from 7 to 10:30 a.m. Monday through Saturday, with lunch and dinner from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. On Sundays, breakfast is served from 7 to 11:30 a.m. and lunch and dinner are offered from noon to 9 p.m.

During winter, the dining car closes at 8 p.m. Sunday through Thursday.

The caboose room is open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays and 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sundays.

Take-out orders are available and can be made by calling Del Monte Express at 655-1941.

Thanksgiving Day verse by Robert H. Linn

FAMILIES — AT THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is a song that autumn sings
With sunglow as a golden chime then rings
To tell us in the dawn that through the day
We'll see our happy children as we pray.

But there were times of struggle, that we know,
Remembering the Pilgrims long ago.
When gathering harvest of both field and mind
To bring for us a day which we may find
So special and sublime it is, that here
All join in this tradition we hold dear —
That links us to the Pilgrims — of our past,
With deepest joy in bountiful repast.

In troubled days of crime and war and stress,
A family that comes home, brings happiness.

ROBERT H. LINN is an educator, linguist, world traveler and longtime resident of Carmel. He was one of the founders of the annual contest chapbook for Monterey Peninsula poets, Poetry Shell, which is now in its 22nd year of publication. Linn is also a former Poet Laureate of Carmel.

Big Sur offers golden opportunities to work off that turkey

By SCOTT BREARTON

What better way to work off a sumptuous Thanksgiving dinner than with a hike in Big Sur country? To refresh your memory, here's a sampling of the pleasures awaiting you just a few miles south of home.

Big Sur proper is a stretch of campgrounds, restaurants, resorts, and stunning vistas about 26 miles south of Carmel on Highway One. At its heart is the winding Big Sur River, dotted with campsites as it makes its way toward the Pacific Ocean.

But let's begin at the beginning.

Point Lobos State Reserve is the first stop of note, located about three miles from the stoplight at Rio Road. Unspoiled, the preserve features ancient Monterey Pine and cypress trees growing at the edge of rugged cliffs—a hint at what the Peninsula must have looked like near the turn of the century.

A series of trails leads to sheltered coves and blowholes. Sea otters and seals frolic in the intertidal zone and thick kelp beds, dining on abalone and the myriad of marine organisms who find the preserve a refuge from fishermen. You might spend an entire day here to take it all in. Bring a picnic lunch, if you don't mind sharing it with the gulls and squirrels who have come to expect a handout or two.

Once an abalone cannery, the cliffs sparkle with mother-of-pearl from crushed abalone shells, remnants of a resource nearly exhausted.

The fee is $6 per vehicle. Seniors pay only $5. In the winter, all incoming traffic is shut off at 4:30, with the park closing at 5 p.m. During summer, the reserve is open until 7 p.m., with incoming traffic halting at 6:30 p.m.

Many visitors avoid the fee altogether and park on the shoulder of Highway One—but watch for speeding cars when crossing the highway.

Ample photo opportunities

Continuing south through the Carmel Highlands, million-dollar mansions overlook rugged cypress-lined coves, like something out of "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous." Numerous turnouts allow ample opportunity to stop and take photographs.

Carrapata State Beach, though windy at times, is a great place to picnic and watch waves pound the sand beach. A five-minute walk (watch for poison oak) will put you at the water's edge. But respect the ocean's power by keeping an eye on the shorebreak at all times. Rip currents and undertow are common here, and—as with all area beaches—there are no lifeguards on duty.

Speaking of photo opportunities, stop at Bixby Creek Bridge for a vista that defies description. Signs posted on the bridge read: "No jumping from bridge." Sound advice, considering the ocean lies some 500 feet below.

Climbing the ridge to Hurricane Point, the best advice is "don't look down."

POINT SUR is the site of an old working lighthouse.

Unwary drivers have plummeted over the cliff while distracted from the spectacular view. Better to pull over at one of the numerous turnouts and get out of your car to absorb the full effect. The fierce winds and height could unnerve the faint of heart. During the rainy season, the unstable cliffs are the site of many slides. Keep your distance from the edge.

Back in your car and winding down the back side of Hurricane Point, Point Sur comes into view. An exaggerated peninsula with an old working lighthouse, it is part of the El Sur Ranch, a private cattle-grazing operation encompassing thousands of acres.

En route, you'll pass the Little Sur River, which meets the ocean at a beautiful white sand beach. Though you'll be tempted to make the short hike to the beach, beware—El Sur Ranch security staff levy stiff fines for trespassing. In fact, signs warn that even loitering on the highway outside the barbed wire fence is technically prohibited.

Great day hike

Past Point Sur, the highway straightens off as you approach Andrew Molera State Park. The park features a campground, horseback riding, and a 20-minute hike leading to the mouth of the Big Sur River.

Though often windy, the cobblestone beach is a great place to bring the family for a picnic lunch. The park closes at sunset. With prevailing offshore winds, the river mouth offers good surfing with the right swell direction.

The "town" of Big Sur is about 10 minutes south of Molera. A popular destination for counter-culture hippies during the 60s, remnants of the subculture still remain 30 years later. "Modern-day hippies" can still be found along the highway, selling handmade soapstone sculptures and bits of polished jade for a nominal price.

Numerous campgrounds offer lodging for rugged souls. Reservations are often necessary during the busy summer season.

California State Parks offers a toll-free number for information about area campgrounds: 1-800-444-7275.

For the slightly less adventurous or more affluent, the Ventana and Post Ranch inns offer five-star meals and accommodations with unmatched views of the south coast.

Of note in Big Sur is the Pfeiffer Big Sur campground, where spacious, shady campsites can be found under a canopy of old-growth redwoods. At Pfeiffer, a hike up the Big Sur River will lead you to "The Gorge," a deep pool of cold, clean water.

100-foot ledges above icy water

A popular summer stomping ground for locals as well as visitors, The Gorge offers huge bleached granite boulders, ideal for tanning next to the river.

Kids and kids-at-heart can be seen leaping from 100-foot ledges into the icy waters below. Bring a pair of ratty sneakers to protect your feet from sharp riverbed rocks. Please, pack your trash, so that future visitors can enjoy it as you surely will.

On Sunday, stop by the Big Sur River Inn and have lunch or a drink by the river, while listening to the sounds of Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers and other local bands.

Julia Pfeiffer State Beach is another well-kept secret. Follow the signs from Highway One. A short drive leads to a parking area.

From there, a 10-minute walk puts you on a beautiful series of beaches, with magnificent pinnacle rocks jutting out of the ocean floor, blowholes, and natural bridges.

Continuing south, check out Nepenthe, a restaurant situated on a ridge overlooking the Pacific. Its adjacent gift shop, The Phoenix, features works by local artists and sculptors, plus lots of things you just can't find in the standard tourist-oriented gift shop.

Try Dettjen's at the Big Sur Inn for a great big breakfast at a modest price, or stop at the Henry Miller Memorial Library nearby for a bit of local history.

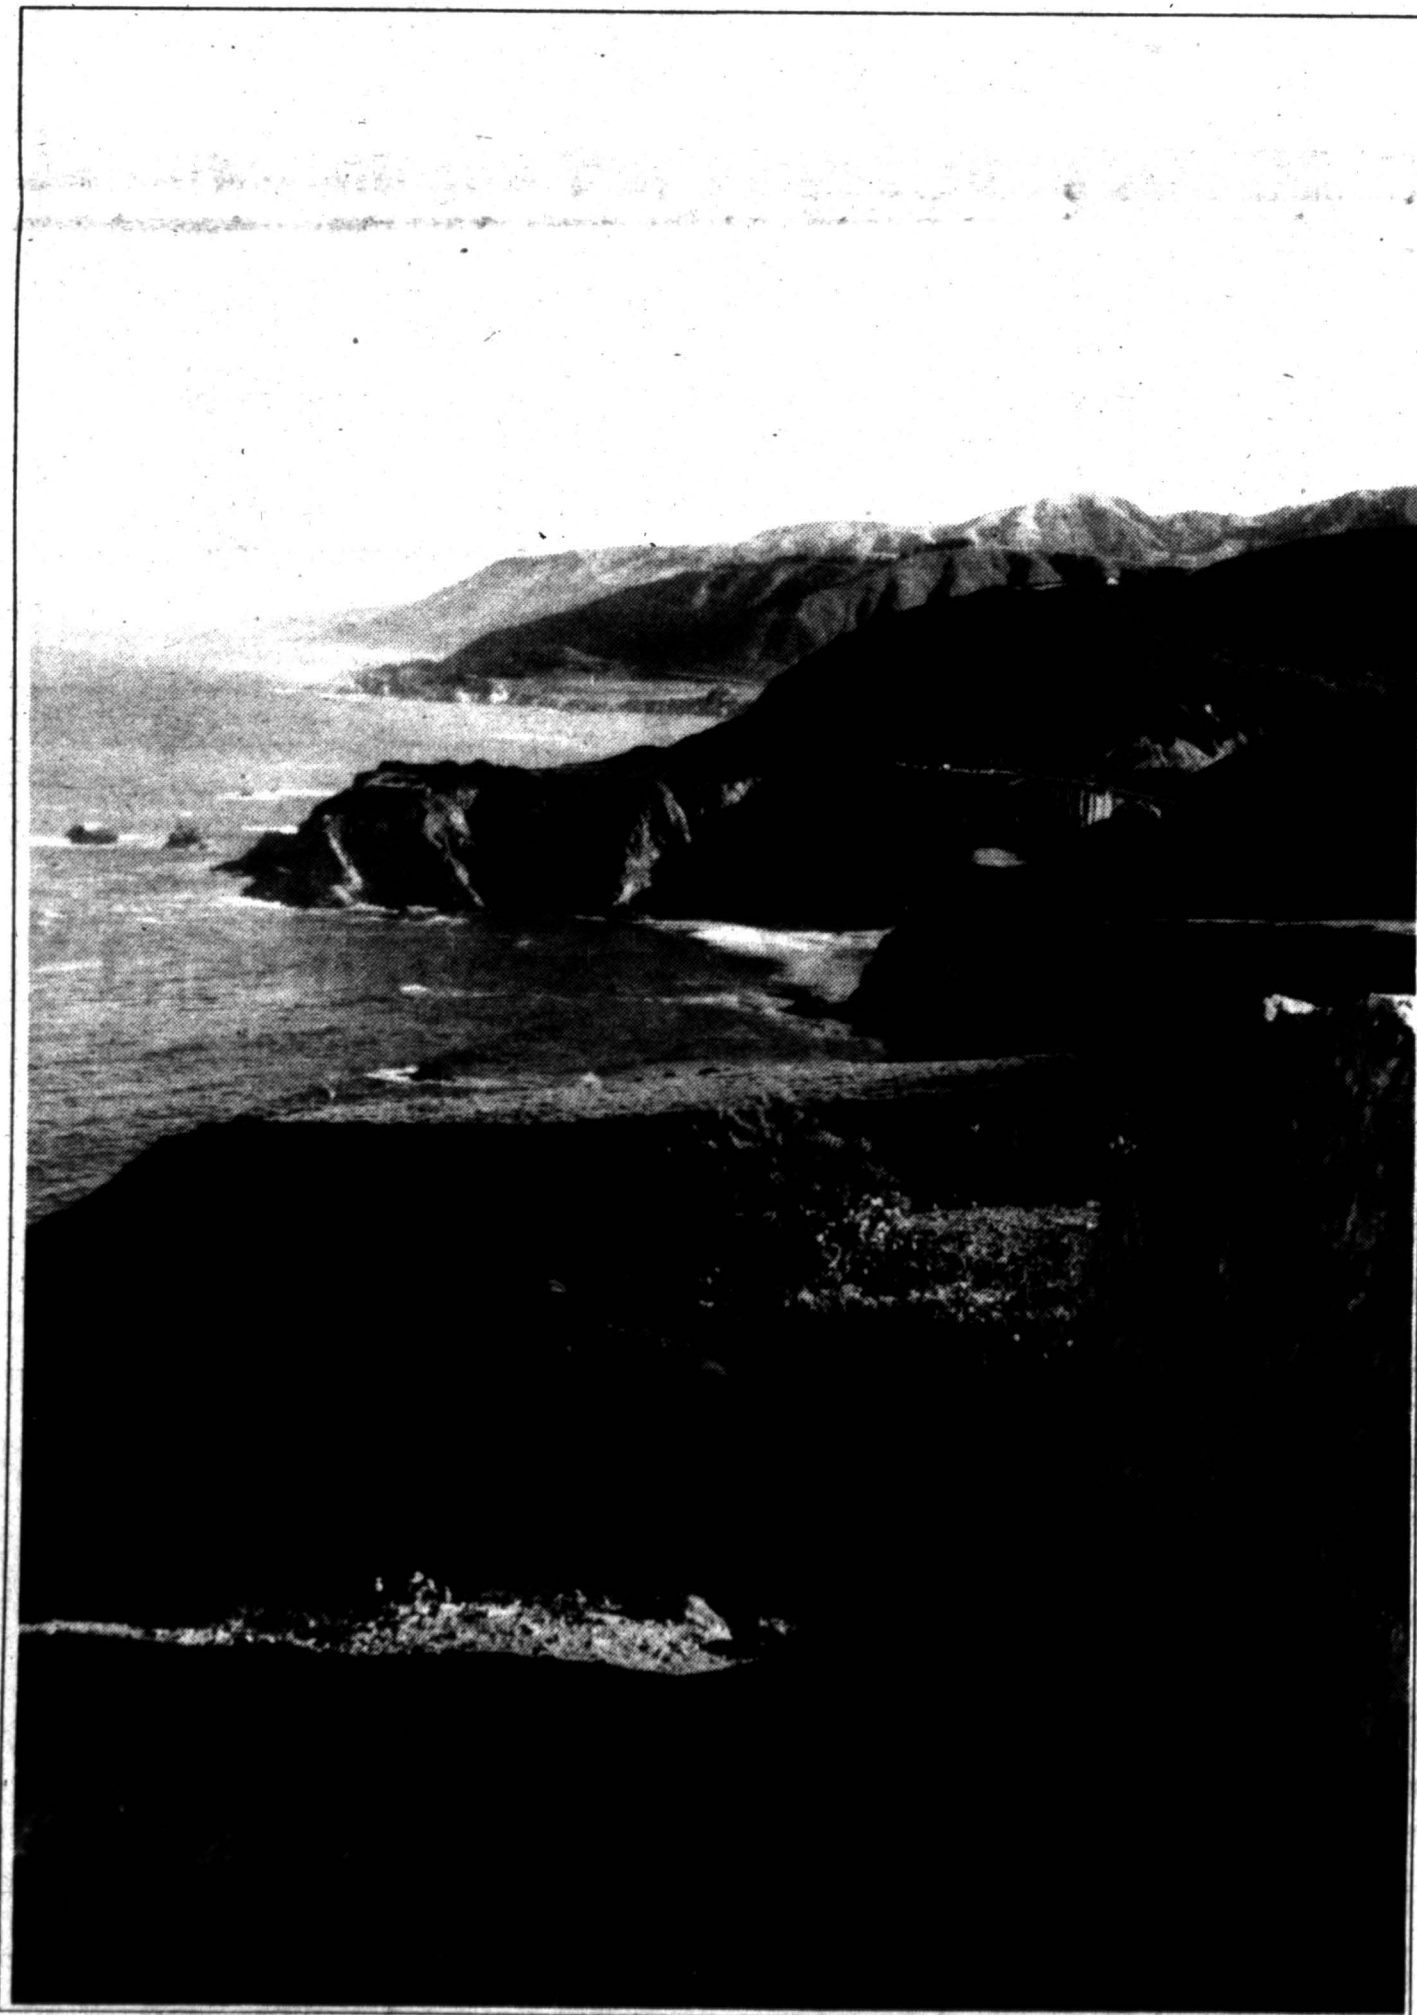

Henry Miller's literary and graphic works are on display, as is information about his colorful life. Miller, who lived in Big Sur for many years, found inspiration in the sage-covered cliffs and beauty found here.

Farther south, still too much to mention: oceanside camping at Limekiln, Kirk's Creek and Plaskett Creek; jade-hunting at numerous beaches; paragliding at Pacific Valley; and fabulous summer diving and fishing possibilities with coastal access abound.

Off-road bicycling enthusiasts can ride to their hearts' content at Nacimiento-Ferguson Road near Kirk's Creek.

While this full plate may be too much to absorb in just one day, a weekend in Big Sur can do wonders to relieve the pressures of work and civilization.

Whether young or old, rich or poor, this stretch of coastline truly does offer something for everyone.

BIXBY CREEK Bridge offers a spectacular vista and a cautionary sign advising, 'No jumping from bridge.'

Cash, Davis turn in stellar performances in Kessler's tale of two brothers

Harold (which we assume involves disposing of stolen securities).

Peter Cash is wonderful as Treat. Not only does his physical appearance change between the two acts, but Cash also adopts a new manner of speaking and a new body language. He has a self-assured swagger that is all on the surface, since he doesn't really know where all these changes will lead. Cash plays his part to the hilt, showing Treat's bewilderment at the changes in his life, as well as his worship of and blind allegiance to Harold.

Davis utterly natural

Mitchell Davis almost steals the show with his strong performance in the role of Harold. He is so utterly natural you tend to forget that he is acting. Harold's moving recollections of his early life as an orphan strike a familiar chord in the brothers and forge a link with them. During these moments Davis skillfully projects a vulnerability about Harold.

The ending of Orphans has an inevitable feeling as we realize that Treat, who seemed so tough and streetwise in the first act, was just as much a victim of parental neglect and abandonment as Phillip. And in fact the elder brother proves less resilient than the younger. The ultimate triumph belongs to Phillip, who comes out of his experiences with a new strength.

Donavan Dolan shows just how versatile he is in one delicious scene about how to deal with difficult fellow passengers on public transportation. Here, he portrays a young black lapsing into rap talk.

Sure touch

Jose Lambert has directed Orphans with a sure touch and a rapid pace. All other aspects of the production, including lighting, costumes and sound, are deftly handled.

The play has three performances this weekend in the SRO Theatre at MPC. Showtimes are 8 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 26 and Saturday, Nov. 27, and 2 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 28. Tickets cost $5 for general admission and may be reserved by calling the MPC Box Office at 646-4213.

PETER CASH, right, plays the role of Treat with a self-assured swagger that is all on the surface.

DONAVAN DOLAN plays a mildly retarded teen-ager and Mitchell Davis the father figure who comes into his life in 'Orphans,' which can be seen this weekend at the SRO Theater at Monterey Peninsula College. Tickets for the show may be reserved by calling the MPC Box Office at 646-4213.

FULL OR PART-TIME

Due to the high cost of factory space, insurance, worker's compensation, and other company expenses, many companies can save thousands of dollars in production time with people assembling very simple products at home for them. Special skills or experience not needed because instructions and materials are sent to you.

After you complete work, send it back for payment. The more work you do, the more you earn. In just 20-45 minutes a day working at home you can earn some very impressive wages.

Kreger Publishing has a listing of a variety of different work that suits both men and women. Best of all, you work when you want. (One company is paying $342 per week to assemble simple plant hangers.)

For more information and a FREE listing of over 60 opportunities, write to:

KREGER PUBLISHING
309 Lothrop Street, OHMH
Taunton, MA 02780

Kreger Publishing does require $3.90 for postage and handling for listings. Orders cannot be filled without postage and handling. Allow 3-4 days.
